Seeming Straws That Indicate Cause of Explosion.

THE BOILERS DID NOT EXPLODE.

Saptain Sampson's Wrecking Recommendations Construed to Point to a Magazine Explosion-Sigsbee's Request Indicates Spontaneous Combustion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-The arrival of a mail in Washington from Key West bringing several private letters from naval officers lately attached to the Maine caused a wave of excitement to run ever the departments and the capitol, for there were all sorts of rumors as to the contents of these letters, very few the contents of these letters, very lew the contents of the co far as could be discovered of real importance as throwing light on the cause of the explosion contained in the letters was the statement that the two after boilers in the after boiler space were all of the eight boilers of the Maine that were under steam at the time of the explosion. This fact had a negative value, for it disposed at once of the theory that an exploding boiler had caused the wreck. The experts all say that by no possibility could the after boilers explosion have wrecked the fore part of the Maine and left the after part almost unharmed.

Much interest was shown in a dispatch received from Admiral Sicard giving the recommendations of Captain Sampson of the court of inquiry as to the raising of the wreck. The view of naval officers was that Captain Sampson and his associates were giving this advice, not as a court, but as officers in a position to speak as to the best methoths to be adopted for wrecking the Maine. Various interpretations were put on the question "forward half com-pletely destroyed." This was regarded as a partial confirmation of the theory that the forward magazine had exploded, as that is one of the most im-portant portions of the forward half of the ship. At the same time it was held by some naval authorities that the de-struction of the forward half of the ship did not necessarily mean that the forward magazine had exploded, as this might still be intact, although a part of the general wre sence of an explicit statement as to the forward magazine there was a disposi-tion not to accept any implied statement as to its destruction.

Evidently the president of the court of inquiry is fearful of the effect upon the public of ill judged attempts to account for the destruction of the Maine, for he telegraphed Secretary Long, doubtless having in mind certain publications, as follows:

"HAVANA, Feb. 24.—Any reported interview with divers untrue. Every precantion has been taken. Officers always present."

This brief statement disposes of all the allegations that have been made pro and con as to the blowing up of the forward magazines.

The officers here are still thinking of Captain Sigsbee's request to be furnished with the plans of the Maine's section through the magazines and coal bunker pockets. The reference to the latter is particularly interesting, and leads to a desire to be informed on the exact quantity and quality of the coal supply at the time of the explosion.

it is said that these pocket bunkers are rarely emptied, being designed as much for the protection of the ship against gunshots as for capacity to hold coal. One expert said that these bunkers, in his experience, have not been emptied in months. All of this has to do with the spontaneous combustion theory, as the bunkers are above the magazines and might have set off even the safe brown powder if the latter were exposed to a degree of heat above 600 degrees for some time.

The request besides may show that Captain Sigsbee is not yet satisfied as to the cause of the explosion, notwithstanding the expressions that have been attributed to him by unauthorized per-

One of the private letters received here, in speaking of the disaster, says it was all over in five minutes. The writer was ashore and heard the noise. He hastily took a boat and started for the Maine, arriving there in about 25 minutes. Then all was quiet and smooth, and in fact, as he said, in five minutes after the blast the Maine was in about her present condition.

THE SENATE SOBERED.

Would Not Pass a Cuban Belligerency Resolution For Fear of Precipitating War With Spain-Even Morgan Fought It-A Crisis Acknowledged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-While the senate had under consideration the dipplomatic and consular appropriation bill a sharp debate on the Can situation was precipitated by Mr. Allen (Neb.), who offered as an amendment the reso lution passed by the senate a year ago recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents. The debate became general and occupied nearly four hours. In the course of a reply to the preliminary statement by Mr. Allen, Mr. Morgau (Ala.) said that this country's relations with Spain at the present time were seriously strained and that intervention by the United States, which a year ago would have been inoffensive, would now be a cause of war. He expressed the opinion that the Cuban afair would eventually be submitted to the arbitrament of the sword between the United States and Spain, but he did not want war precipitated by rash acts of legislation.

"If, however," said Mr. Morgan, "any senator believes in a declaration of war, and will draw up such a declaration with sufficient and proper grounds upon which to base it, I will vote for

At this point Mr. Allen interrupted Mr. Morgan to disclaim any intention of making a declaration of war against Spain. He expressed the opinion that his amendment could in no way be construed into such a declaration.

Mr. Foraker (O.) thought the day not far distant when the time for action by this country would arrive, and that the chief magistrate of the nation ought to rejoice that the legislative branch of the government was prepared to support him in asserting American rights: Mr. Thurston (Neb.) counseled calmness and prudence, for he believed that the country was rapidly drifting into a war with Spain. "We ought to have patience," said he, "and wait as a great and powerful people, not in fear, but in hope, that some satisfactory conclusion of the present difficulty may be reached." Mr. Hoar (Mass.) maintained that the floor of the senate was no proper place for angry discussions of international affairs, and that no senator ought to utter anything that might not well be uttered by the president of the United States. He expressed his willingness, however, to give his support to the ex-ecutive should the time for action arrive, provided the proposed action was based upon clear and unmistakable fact.

Mr. Allen's amendment was ruled out of order and the appeal from the ruling taken by the Nebraska senator was laid on the table by a vote of 51 to 5. Early in the day, Mr. Allen offered a resolution providing for a committee of five senators, who should go to Cuba and ascertain the precise situation on the island. Under the rules it went over un-

The highest American officials here are confident that General Blanco and the Spanish officials had no knowledge of the conception or execution of a plot to blow up the Maine, if such a plot existed, but they believe the younger Spanish officers were to blame. It is pointed out that it would not be impossible to plant a mine of wet and dry gun cotton near where a foreign vessel was directed to anchor, such a mine communicating with an electric battery on shore.

It is regarded an interesting point that the Maine, for the first time during her stay in the harbor, lay at the particular spot where she was at the time of the catastrophe, and it is said, though not officially verified, that she was the first foreign vessel moored to this buoy since the troubles in Cuba grew acute. All stories as to lax discipline on the Maine are without a shadow of truth.

In reply to a question put by the correspondent to a high American official as to what the outcome would beif it was proved the disaster was due to an outside agency, the official in question said: "Sir, the American people could not be restrained. I mean war. Still, I doubt whether it would be necessary to fire a shot. Admiral Sicard could anchor the Iowa, the Indiana, the Massachusetts and the New York outside Havana harbor to prevent the ingress of the food supplies, without which the city could not exist a fortnight.

"If Admiral Sicard were to deder of Havana, givmanded the surren ing 24 hours for the removal of the women and children, surrender would follow. The forts are old structures and could be demolished by a sixpounder.

"If General Blanco should decline to surrender, the Spanish merchants here, who represent 80 per cent of the property and pay 75 per cent of the taxes of the island, would compel him to accede to Admiral Sicard's terms.'

SECRET COURT OF INQUIRY.

Witnesses Examined, but No Information Is Given Out.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The United States court of inquiry into the loss of the Maine met and examined Dr. Honeberger, Paymaster Ray and Chief Engineer Howell of the battleship, and several other witnesses, whose names are not now obtainable.

The captain says he has no idea of the length of time the court will remain in session here. It depends upon the testimony, and new features requiring further investigation may develop at any time.

Captain Sampson added that sooner or later every survivor of the Maine will be examined by the court, which seems to imply that sessions for that purpose will be held at Key West.

Although this information is meager, it is absolutely all Captain Sampson will give to the press. The correspondents see him by appointment twice daily, but there is a rigid rule to observe silence until the facts in the case have developed through the testimony presented.

VULTURES MUTILATE THE DEAD. The Bodies of Officers Jenkins and Merritt Still Missing.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The bodies of the missing officers, Lieutenant Jenkins and Assistant Engineer Merritt, have not been recovered from the wreck of the Maine. The divers reached the former's room, but his body was not there.

Thus far the sharks have given no trouble, but the vultures have left scarcely anything but the skeletons of three men who were entangled in debris very near the surface of the water. The bodies were not noticed by anyone until the foul birds had completed their ghastly work. From the hand of one Chaplain Chadwick removed a deeply chased gold ring for the purpose of identification.

Chaplain Chadwick says that the total number of missing is 85 or 86 and five have died in the hospital. Of the missing, many doubtless were blown to atoms, no portions of their bodies being recoverable, and there is much doubt

WRECKING TUG AT HAVAVA.

Strong Wind Adds to the Difficulties of the Divers.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.-The Right Arm of the Merritt and Chapman Derrick and Wrecking company is moored about 200 yards from the poop of the Maine. The wrecking tug looks powerful enough to move a mountain, yet it is reported that she is not supplied, owing to her hurried departure for this port, with all the apparatus she needs for the work which is before her.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Sensational reports having been circulated that Senator Hanna had expressed the belief that a conflict between the United States and Spain was imminent the attention of the senator was called to them. He emphatically denied them.

"I do not believe there is anything in the Maine incident or in our relations with Spain regarding Cuba that will cause war. I am firmly of the opinion that the explosion of the Maine was due to an accident, and I think that the naval court of inquiry will reach the same conclusion."

"And congress will do nothing?"

"What is there for congress to do? There is no information except a lot of sensational stories upon which to base all this talk of war. Even the secretary of the navy has no information, and as long as the president and the secretary of navy and all the rest of the cabinet keep cool and quiet there is no need for the rest of us to get alarmed. No," said Senator Hanna in conclusion, I honestly and frankly do not see any reason for the excitement that is being created. There will be no war."

CAPTAIN SIGSBEE SENSITIVE.

Canton's Ex-Mayor Charged With Postoffice Robbery.

2,000 STAMPS FOUND IN HIS DESK.

Bail In the Sum of $1,000 Furnished For Court-Other Arrests Made-Appleton Publishing Company Furnished the Clue That Caused Arrest.

CANTON, O., Feb. 24.-Attorney William J. (Dick) Piero has been arrested at the instance of Postoffice Inspector A. P. Owens on suspicion of complicity in the burglary of the Massillon postoffice last Sunday morning. In his office desk were found nearly 2,000 2stamps, 23 1-cent stamps and a number of stamps of obsolete styles; letters to and from noted crooks, percussion caps, fuse and other tools and appliances used by burglars. Piero disclaimed all knowledge of how the stamps and other articles reached his desk. Affidavits were filed against him in local courts pending action in the United States court, charging him with receiving stolen goods and having burglar tools in his possession. On the latter charge he furnished $1,000 bond.

Piero served several terms as mayor of this city, and has long been a prominent practicing attorney. Until recently, when an assignment proved the contrary, he was counted a wealthy man, and was conspicuous on the board of trade, real estate and general public enterprises.

The arrest of Piero was followed shortly by that of William Henderson and James C. Rowley, and it is said other arrests are to follow. The authorities claim this is but the beginning of the rounding up of a large crowd of postoffice robbers, who have been operat-ing in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania for some time.

"Chub" Piero, a nephew of W. J., and "Dutch" Frank, two local characters, were arrested the first of the week for burglary, and they were interviewed in jail by the officers before the attor-ney's desk was raided.

The clue against Piero is said to have

VULTURES MUTILATE THE DEAD. The Bodies of Officers Jenkins and Merritt Still Missing.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The bodies of the missing officers, Lieutenant Jenkins and Assistant Engineer Merritt, have not been recovered from the wreck of the Maine. The divers reached the former's room, but his body was not there.

Thus far the sharks have given no trouble, but the vultures have left scarcely anything but the skeletons of three men who were entangled in debris very near the surface of the water. The bodies were not noticed by anyone until the foul birds had completed their ghastly work. From the hand of one Chaplain Chadwick removed a deeply chased gold ring for the purpose of identification. Chaplain Chadwick says that the total number of missing is 85 or 86 and five have died in the hospital. Of the missing, many doubtless were blown to atoms, no portions of their bodies being

WRECKING TUG AT HAVAVA

Itrong Wind Adds to the Difficulties of the Divers.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.-The Right Arm of the Merritt and Chapman Derrick and Wrecking company is moored about 200 yards from the poop of the Maine. The wrecking tug looks powerful enough to move a mountain, yet it is reported that she is not supplied, owing to her hurried departure for this port, with all the apparatus she needs for the work which is before her.

Captain McGee, the commander of the Right Arm, has reported to Captain Sigsbee, as ordered by the navy department, and will act under Captain Sigsbee's orders, which are not yet formulated, or at least are not make known.

A strong wind made the harbor rough and added to the difficulty of the divers, as the electric lights are worked from a battery on board the lighthouse tender Mangrove, 200 yards distant.

NO WAR, SAYS HANNA.

Firmly Believes the Maine Was Destroyed by Accident.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Sensational reports having been circulated that Senator Hanna had expressed the belief that a conflict between the United States and Spain was imminent the attention of the senator was called to them. He emphatically denied them.

"I do not believe there is anything in the Maine incident or in our relations with Spain regarding Cuba that will cause war. I am firmly of the opinion that the explosion of the Maine was due to an accident, and I think that the naval court of inquiry will reach the same conclusion."

"And congress will do nothing?" "What is there for congress to do? There is no information except a lot of sensational stories upon which to base all this talk of war. Even the secretary of the navy has no information, and as long as the president and the secretary of navy and all the rest of the cabinet keep cool and quiet there is no need for the rest of us to get alarmed. No," said Senator Hanna in conclusion, "I honestly and frankly do not see any reason for the excitement that is being created. There will be no war."

SOCIETY LACKS PATRIOTISM.

Mahany Thinks New York Should Suspend Gaities For a Time.

Washington, Feb. 24. - A variety of subjects occupied the attention of the house during the consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropration bill. Mr. Mahany, of New York, made an attack on the patriotism of some of the social leaders of New York, whom he said held high revel while the nation was bowed down with grief over the loss of life resultin gfrom the Maine explosion. Canton's Ex-Mayor Charged With Postoffice Robbery.

2,000 STAMPS FOUND IN HIS DESE.

Bail In the Sum of $1,000 Furnished For Court-Other Arrests Made-Appleton Publishing Company Furnished the Clue That Caused Arrest.

CANTON, O., Feb. 24.-Attorney William J. (Dick) Piero has been arrested at the instance of Postoffice Inspector A. P. Owens on suspicion of complicity in the burglary of the Massillon postoffice last Sunday morning. In his office desk were found nearly 2,000 2stamps, 23 1-cent stamps and a number of stamps of obsolete styles; letters to and from noted crooks, percussion caps, fuse and other tools and appliances used by burglars. Piero disclaimed all knowledge of how the stamps and other articles reached his desk. Affidavits were filed against him in local courts pending action in the United States court, charging him with receiving stolen goods and having burglar tools in his possession. On the latter charge he furnished $1,000 bond.

Piero served several terms as mayor of this city, and has long been a prominent practicing attornev. Until recently, when an assignment proved the contrary, he was counted a wealthy man, and was conspicuous on the board of trade, real estate and general public enterprises. The arrest of Piero was followed shortly by that of William Henderson and James C. Rowley, and it is said other arrests are to follow. The authorities claim this is but the beginning of the rounding up of a large crowd of postoffice robbers, who have been operat-ing in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania for some time. "Chub" Piero, a nephew of W. J., and "Dutch" Frank, two local characters, were arrested the first of the week for burglary, and they were interviewed in jail by the officers before the attorney's desk was raided. The clue against Piero is said to have come from the Cincinnati offices of the Appleton Publishing company. This house used newspaper stamps which are never sold on matter mailed, and to inquiries responded that the stamps came to them in a remittance from

MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

Students and Others at the Meeting In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24.—There are 1,500 student delegates and 500 missionaries, professors and representatives of missionary societies in attendance at the third international convention of the student volunteer movement. A number were not able to gain admittance to the Cleveland Grays' armory, where the general opening meeting was held.

Today and thereafter simultaneous meetings will be held in several halls and churches near the armory.

Among the many distinguished people attending the convention are Bishop M. E. Baldwin of Huron, Dr. Edmund Buckley of Chicago, Rev. Dr. D. J. Burrell of New York, Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark of the Society of Christian Endeavor, Eishop T. U. Dudley of Kentucky, Rev. Dr. J. T. Gracey, president of the International Missionary union; President Charles C. Hall of New York, Bishop W. A. Leonard of Ohio, Bishop N. X. Ninde of the Epworth Lague and others equally as prominent besides missionaries from every quarter of the globe.

Miss Willard's Body Interred.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The remains of Miss Frances E. Willard, late president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union, arrived in Chicago from New York over the Michigan Central railroad and were conveyed to Willard hall in the W. C. T. U. temple, where they lay in state. Thousands of people passed through the beautiful hall to take a last look at the face of the great temperance leader. The body was later conveyed to Evanston, Miss Willard's former home, and the interment took place at Rose Hill cemetery today.

BIG CROWD SAW BOUTS

Athletic Club Entertained Last Night.

CLEVER BOXING AND WRESTLING

Mike Farragher and John Parry Were the Star Attractions, the Former Challenging Any Man In America at 130 Pounds-The Other Events.

The fourth annual entertainment of the East Liverpool Athletic club, held manager didn't take the trouble to look last evening, was attended by a large crowd, and was very successful from every standpoint, the bouts being the best ever seen in the city.

Fred Anderson acted as master of ceremonies, while John Howarth, of Beaver Falls, was referee, and George Perry timekeeper. After an overture by Nowling's orchestra William O'Connell and Frank Salisbury were introduced and proceeded to spar five three-minute rounds. It was a very pretty match, but O'Connell had the best of it in every round, as he had the weight and reach in his favor, but Salisbury, although suffering from a sore wrist, kept his opponent busy, and won hearty applause for his clever work.

The five round bout between Thomas Potts and Fred Waxenfelter, Beaver Falls, was one of the warmest of the evening. Waxenfelter was a great deal the heavier and was the fiercer puncher, but was too slow on his feet, and Potts easily proved himself to be by far the cleverer of the two, landing on his opponent whenever he desired. In the fourth round Waxenfelter received to see through the trouble, so he begged a blow on the nose which caused the blood to flow. The bout brought forth the warmest applause of the evening.

The wrestling match between L. Lutz, Beaver Falls, and Rube Barber, New Castle, Pa., catch as catch can, best two out of three falls, amateur rules governing, was one of the most interesting affairs of the evening. Neither secured a fall in the first round, but both won hearty applause by their clever work. In the second round Lutz secured the first fall in 2.15, but in the third Barber succeeded in throwing his antagonist in 3.20. The men are very evenly matched | dealers, a bushel each. A few of them in weight and strength.

The orchestra played an overture, and then the event of the evening was annonnced, a 10 round bout between-John Parry, of Homestead, Farragher, of Youngstown.

Before the bout commenced Fred Anderson, on behalf of Manager O'Malley, announced that Farragher would meet any man in America at 130 pounds.

Farragher was the larger man and had slightly the best of it in the reach, but Perry proved himself very clever and made things warm for his opponent. Ten very warm rounds were fought, and both men were greeted with applause their clever work. Farragher was a winner, and should they have been sparring for points there is little doubt but that he would have received the decision.

The entertainment was conducted in a first class manner, all whistling and cheering being prohibited.

H'S IN SHORTHAND.

Many Trials of an Englishman With His Stenographer.

An Englishman who drops his h's and aspirates his a's and a stenographer and typewriter who spells phonetically from dictation make a combination from which trouble is sure to result un less the "copy" is carefully revised. The manager of one of the most important manufacturing plants in Cleveland is an Englishman. Not long ago he employed a young man to act as his stenographer, and one of the first things that the latter was called upon to do was the "taking down" of a letter to the manager's wife, who was away at a summer resort. Being a busy man, the at the letter after it had been typewritten, but when his wife answered it there was a hot time for the stenographer. "My dear Henry," she wrote, what on earth do you mean by calling me 'Hannah' and our little Horace 'Orris?' I will admit that this sounds like you, but why do you make a joke of it before your employees?"

Of course the fond husband and father didn't know what it all meant, and so he wrote for an explanation, when his first letter was sent back to him.

One glance at it and be rushed over to his stenographer, excitedly threw the sheet down before him and demanded, 'There, what do you mean, sir, by writing my wife's name down 'Annah?' '

"Anna?" replied the young man. 'Let me see. No, I've got it Hannah, all right."

"But," said the manager, who was furious, "it's not 'Annah, -Hanna!"

"Well, there it is, Hannah-H-a-nn-a-h. "

"'Annah be dashed!" exclaimed the manager. "A-n-n-a, Hanna! Can't you understand English, you blanked fool?"

By this time the stenographer began off upon the plea that having had a swelling in one of his ears he had not been able to hear very well. But it cost him nearly a week's salary to square things with the other boys in the office, and he always deems it best to hide when he hears the manager's wife in the hall. -Cleveland Leader.

A BUSINESS PARABLE.

You Cannot Fail to Appreciate the Point In This Story.

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat, which he sold not to a single grain merchant, but to 1,800 different paid him in cash, but far the greater number said it was not convenient then; they would pay later. A few months passed, and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this?" he said. "My 1.800 bushels of grain should have kept me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough to pay expenses.'

So he posted up a public notice and asked all those who owed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said, "Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay one of these days," forgetting that though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke, and running to his granary found his 1,800 bushels of wheat still safe there. He had only been dreaming.

Moral. -The next day the man went to the publisher of his paper and said: 'Here, sir, is the pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription is due you can depend on me to pay it promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how it feels to have one's honestly earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."-- Union Signal.

His Alibi.

Once upon a time the late Sir Frank Lockwood, while attending a police court, noticed that the magistrates were performing their duties in a very expeditious manner, and he commented on the fact to a superintendent of police. "Yes," answered the superintendent, who was pompous and none too well educated, "their worships always dispenses with justice very fast." Some years ago he got a prisoner off by proving an alibi. Some time afterward the judge met him and said, "Well, Lockwood, that was a very good alibi.' "Yes, my lord," was the answer. "I had three offered me, and I think I selected the best.'

Mervousness.

This term was first used by a minister of state who affected to ridicule the warnings of those who were constantly drawing the attention of the two houses of parliament to Russia's steady advance toward India. The term was a happy one in its way, but time ere long proved that the alarmists were correct, and the said minister, so far as I remember, deprecated its being constant. ly brought up against him.

This word was coined by the Duke of Argyll, who, in a speech in the house of lords, was deriding the well founded apprehensions of those who feared that the Russiana would make themselves masters of Merv, in Turkistan. They took it in 1883-4. - Notes and Queries.

LAND OF THE INCAS.

A RETURNED GOLD SEEKER'S IMPRES-SIONS OF PERU.

The Mines Are Said to Be Exhausted. Americans Are Warned Against Going There-Natives Are Lazy and Thriftless. The Difficulties of Transportation.

Josiah Johns, brother of Mrs. W. J. Carrier, is in Sacramento, having returned a few days ago from Peru, whither he went with a party last March during the gold excitement.

Speaking recently of his experiences to a reporter, he said: "I cannot too strongly warn Americans, whether capitalists or laborers, against going to Peru with the idea of benefiting themselves, for they will surely find themselves dead broke in a short time in a strange country-and a very hard one to make a living in-unless they take time by the forelock, as I did, and leave the country while they are able to do so. In all my travels there I found only one man who was making anything, and he had taken a contract on a mine 17,000 feet above the sea level.

"We were given glowing accounts of the marvelous richness of the placers on one or two rivers, where the Indians dive down and bring up their hands full of the golden sands, but it is a miserable lie and has been the cause of leaving many a poor fellow there and stranding him. We prospected the rivers and found that there was no gold in them. When Pizarro conquered Peru, the incas, who were a highly intelligent race, had collected vast amounts of gold-nobody will ever know how much-from the sands of the streams. Pizarro and his men set the natives at work to collect more, and the work has been going on ever since. Then came the Portuguese, who were so successful that the Spaniards got jealous of them and drove them away. The result is that the placers were all mined out long ago. It is very hard prospecting also, as the streams are swift and the mountain sides rough and very steep.

"There are rich silver mines there, but they are very high up, 17,000 feet or more, and the air is so rare that a white man cannot work, and the work is done by Indians. The native Peruvians work very little, making the Indians do their work. I know of only one successful mine as low down as 6,500 feet. There is very little show, too, for a man to find employment in other directions than mining, for he must come into competition with the Indians, who are poorly paid.

"The native Peruvians are the laziest people you can imagine. They not only make no provision for next week, bu none even for the next day, a meal ahead being about the extent of their solicitude. Time is no object to them, and they pay very little attention to it. They do not like foreigners and delay and discourage them in every possible way. It does not make much difference whether they are Americans, English or German-they are all 'gringoes' to the Peruvians, as they are to his Mexican brethren, and he dislikes them all.

"Harry Meiggs is about the only American that has ever done well in Peru, and I do not know how he ever managed to get so good a show given to him, they dislike strangers so. He built a good road, and it is considerably used, but it seems funny to me how they run their trains. A train runs three times a week to the Titicaca basin, and it takes its time. It runs to Arequipa and then stops for the night. The next morning it starts again and runs all day, stopping again at night, and takes three days to get to the basin.

"On the Pacific side it is a dry, rain less region, but on the Amazon side it rains nearly every day. When one gets up into the cordilleras, it is all right as long as the sun is up, but in the night it gets very cold. I had very hard work to find transportation, and my experience illustrates the character of the people. When you have gone as far as the railroad will take you, you must get mules to go farther, and there is the rub. If you get mules, their owner will agree to take you a certain distance, but he will take you no farther, nor will he give you a reason for his refusal to do so. After I arrived at the end of the railroad I was 16 days trying to get mules before I succeeded. The superintendent of a mine who did me many great favors after some days of entreaty persuaded a rich Peruvian to send his mules to take me 150 miles, but he would not take me a bit farther, and I had to wait there 16 days longer before I obtained more mules. There is no use of fretting, for it does not do a particle of good, and money is no object to such

"When you arrive at a town, the gobernador must be seen. He takes you to his house, where there is plenty of room, and you can get all the supplies you need in the shape of food from him by paying well for it. Of course he is in no hurry to have you go, and only diplomacy starts you on your journey again, for he takes his time to help you.

"As I said before, there is very little show for a white man. There is nothing left in mining that is worth talking about. I know of one mine where a whole lot of money has been sested. but they only strike gold in pockets.

The incas mined the country, and after them came the Spaniards and Portuguese, and they have pretty well cleaned up the ground. There is little left except in the very high altitudes, where even the natives can do little and employ the Indians to do the work. White men will do well to give the country a wide berth."

Mr. Johns is a man of much more than average intelligence and does not look like a man who is easily discouraged. He will soon be on his road to Alaska when the spring opens to try for better luck there. - Sacramento Record

STORIES OF THE DAY.

How Representative Berry Surreptitionsly Ate an Apple In the House.

Senator Allen of Nebraska has found a clever way to get around the senate rules that forbid smoking in the lobby. As those about the capitol know Senator Allen is a man of almost heroic size. The contrast is, therefore, all the more apparent when the senator smokes a wee small eigar, smaller than the average cigarette, but nicely fashioned and of good material. In fact, the tobacco is so well chosen that there is a minimum of smoke. As Senator Allen does not care for a heavy smoke the little cigar is just the thing. There is such a small amount of smoke from it when consumed slowly that the guardians of the peace about the corridors would hesitate a long while before declaring that the senator had his cigar lighted. Therefore he has his quiet smoke without interruption when tramping about the

The stalwart Representative Berry of Kentucky likes apples as well as the average Kentuckian likes whisky. So yesterday as he sat at his desk in the house. going over a mass of Kentucky correspondence that had accumulated before him with every incoming mail, hunger for an apple came over him, it might be added, with a force like the thirst that very, very frequently comes over the average Kentuckian for something strong to drink. As Mr. Berry glanced at letter after letter he thrust his hand from time to time down into his coat pocket, where an apple was reposing. The house being in session and Mr. Berry a man who always wishes to observe the proprieties, he appeared reluctant to devour the fruit.

But at last he drew the apple forth a little above the desk, and when General Henderson had attracted the house with one of his eloquent periods Mr. Berry stole a bite, just as a schoolboy might do when his teacher is not looking. Finally Mr. Berry stole another bite, and another bite, all the while proceeding diligently with his correspondence, and he continued to eat surreptitiously from the apple till nothing was left but back and kidneys, a dull aching pain the core. Then with a spirit of relief he attacked the pile of letters before him with renewed diligence.

Jimmie English, the round faced youth of diminutive stature who is one of the special employees on the Democratic side of the house, knows something about Speaker Reed's ideas of smoking. Jimmie is given to cigarettes, and recently, when the house was not in session, he comfortably bolstered himself up in a member's chair, elevated his feet to the desk, as some congressmen do, and was about to enjoy the fragrant weed.

But just at the time that Jimmie was first watching the curl of smoke from price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo. his cigarette the doors from the rear N. V., sole agents for United States. his cigarette the doors from the rear lobby swung and the mammoth form of Speaker Reed appeared. He stalked along the open space in front of the desk, cast his eye about the house and discovered the youthful offender.

"That's a pretty picture, Jimmie, isn't it?" was the speaker's comment. "You know it is against the rules to smoke in here."

"But I'm not smoking a cigar, sir. It is only a cigarette," answered young English.

"That's worse," said the speaker. Get out of here." And when Jimmie wants to smoke "coffin tacks" now he seeks some other spot than the hall of representatives or the baunts of Speaker

No man in congress can produce on short notice more dangerous explosives than Representative Hilborn of California, the ranking Republican member of the house committee on naval affairs. While discussing the disaster to the Maine in the committee room recently Judge Hilborn stated that the only explosives in the forward magazine were 50,000 pounds of brown powder. "Just remain here for a moment," added the judge, "and I will show you some of that kind of powder."

He hastened to his desk in the hall of representatives and returned in a moment with a small paper package. Unwrapping it, he disclosed several small solid pieces in various symmetrical forms. Pointing to an octagonal shaped piece which had a round hole through the center of it, he said: "That is brown powder such as was in the forward magazine of the Maine. I will show you how it burns in the fire."

There was 'a scattering of spectators as Judge Hilborn walked boldly to the fireplace for the purpose of consuming the chunk of brown powder, which burned and sputtered without making any explosion. Drawing from the inside pocket of his coat a long, thin strip of

A SEA OF FLAME. On the evening of November, 28th, 1878, fire broke out in the British ship Melanie, loaded with 500 barrels of petroleum. An awful mass of flames shot up from the main hatch and the vessel quivered from stem te stern with explosion of the barrels. Her seams opened and the blazing petroleum poured out into the river, spreading a belt of fire around her. The master and seamen jumped overboard. Captain Sharp, whose vessel was lying close-by, propelled a small boat through the blazing river and after a severe scorching and imminent peril, saved the seamen from a horrible death.

MOB'S COWARDLY ACT.

Killed a Postmaster Because He Was a Negro.

SHOT HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

One Boy Murdered and His Body and That of His Father Cremated In the Burning Home, Fired by South Carolina Whites.

LAKE CITY, S. C., Feb. 23.—Postmaster Baker, a negro, and his child were here. It is said that a mob numbering several hundred surrounded Baker's house, where the postoffice is kept, set fire to the building and opened fire with guns upon it. Baker was killed and his wife, two daughters and one son were seriously wounded.

There had been protests against Baker's appointment. Three months ago he was fired upon from ambush.

Tuesday of last week his house was riddled with bullets.

It was a short time before that Senators Stillman and McLauren and Congressman Horton had asked the postmaster general to remove Baker because of his color, and the request had been refused.

Early Tuesday morning the torch was applied to the postoffice and Baker's house. Back, just within the line of light, were over 100 white men armed with pistols and shotguns. By the time the fire aroused the sleeping family, consisting of the postmaster, his wife, four daughters, a son and an infant at the breast, the crowd began firing into the building. A hundred bullet holes wormed through the thin boards, and many found lodgment in the people within.

Baker was the first to reach the door, and he fell dead just within the threshhold, being shot in several places. The moth r had the baby in her arms, and had reached the door over her husband's ol, when a bullet crashed through its skuil and fell to the floor. She was shot in several places. Two of the girls had their arms broken close to the shoulder and will probably lose them. Another of the girls is believed to be fatally wounded.

The boy is shot. Two of the seven occupants of the house escaped with slight injuries. The bodies of Baker and the infant were cremated in the building. All mail matter was de-

DONNELLY TAKES A BRIDE.

The Politician and Author United to His Stenographer In Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 23.—The marriage of Miss Marion Olive Hansen and Ignatius Donnelly was solemnized kere with much pomp and ceremony. The nuptials were celebrated in the church of the bride, the Norwegian Methodist, which was completely filled with an andience of about 600, which evinced a deep interest in the affair.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. Jacobson. Mr. Donnelly was attended by J. A. Sutherland as best man and Mahon B. Burke and J. M. Hawthorn of St. Paul as groomsmen. The bride entered on the arm of her father, and was preceded by her maid of honor and eight bridesmaids. Her gown was a heavy ivory satin with full court

The marriage was followed by a small dinner at the Nicollet House, and from to 4 o'clock a reception was held at the hotel to which a large number of guests were invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly left later for an eastern trip of six weeks' duration. The bride, who is 22 years of age, has been for about two years Mr. Donnelly's stenographer.

WHY CUBANS ARE SORRY.

Maine Disaster Has Neutralized Unfriendliness Between the Two Countries.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23.—Senor A.G. De Arango, a prominent Cuban and a member of the junta, in speaking of the Maine explosion said:

"It is needless for me to say that the Cubans deplore that disaster. But it may interest the public to know that we also regret the occurrence for a reason quite separate from sympathy

"The event will doubtless result in bringing Spain and the United States into more amiable relations. Already the conciliatory courtesy of the Havana authorities and the Madrid administration has neutralized the unfriendly feeling which so long prevailed in this country. The Spanish ministry saw its opportunity to strike the soft spot in the American heart, and was not tardy in embracing it.'

The Vizcaya Risks Our Coal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.-Two Lehigh Valley coal barges were towed to the Vizcaya and their cargos transferred to the man-of-war. The vessel needed coal, and Captain Eulate decided to take on board a supply here. The waterboat Croton also visited the Vizcaya and filled her tanks with fresh water. The coal was closely watched.

DRUMMER'S QUEER STORY.

Made Them Drink to His Early Grave and Survived Them All.

A hale and hearty traveling man with pink skin and white hair-a condition of complexion which, by the way, not every traveling man lives to reach-was renewing his youth with a party of young and festive drummers. Drinks were going round freely, and when one of the "boys" turned down his glass there was considerable remonstrance on the part of his companions at his refusal to have "just one more."

The white haired man quietly cut the discussion short by saying, "That reminds me."

The old drummer flicked the ashes from his cigar and settled back in his shot to death and their bodies cremated chair. "It was a long time ago," said he, "and it was in the old American House in this city. There were five young men seated in a room, just as we are here tonight, only they were all feeling 'pretty good,' and there wasn't any old man around to bore them with a story. But along about midnight one of the party turned down his glass just as my young friend here has done. He said he had had enough, and goodness knows he had. His determination was greeted most hilariously as a good joke. He steadily declined, however, though the wine was brought and set before him, but the taunts and innuendoes of his comrades finally exasperated him so that he exclaimed rather petulantly, but half in fun, 'Well, boys, I'll join you once more if you will drink to an early grave for me. ' The toast was proposed uproariously and drank standing. But somehow after that the fun was not so furious. Things quieted down. The men seemed to half realize that to drink to a man's death wasn't such a good joke after all, and one by one they made excuses and went off to bed.

Here the old man paused.

"Did the man die?" queried he who had refused to "have another" with some interest.

"No," was the reply. "He is the only one of the five now alive to tell the tale. -Buffalo News.

THE SANCY DIAMOND.

This Magnificent Jewel Will Be Owned by Pauline Astor.

In the ordinary course of events Miss Pauline Astor will some day become possessor of the most famous and magnificent diamond owned outside of a crown treasure. The gem in question is the world famous Sancy diamond, owned by her father, and were it to appear among the jewels worn at any court function or royal drawing room it would entirely throw into the shade every other gem there except the Kohinoor, which the queen always wears on state occasions as a brooch.

The Sancy is a stone which is possessed of a remarkable bistory. Weighing about 54 carats, it at one time formed part of the crown jewels of Duke Charles the Bold of Burgundy, and on his death in battle in Switzerland was found set either in his helmet or sword hilt. The Swiss sold it to the French king of the day, and from that time forth it became one of the crown jewels of France.

It disappeared at the time of the revolution, reappeared at the restoration and at the time of the second revolution in 1830 passed by purchase into the possession of Anatole Demidoff, the Muscovite millionaire. It was worn for a time by Demidoff's wife, Princess Mathilde Bonaparte, but he took it from her before their separation and then bequeathed it to his nephew, Paul Demidoff. The latter sold it in the sixties for the sum of $200,000, a ridiculously small price, to the late Sir Jamsetjee Jejeehobboy, the Parsee millionaire and philanthropist of Bombay. After his demise his heirs put it once more in the market, and it was purchased by William Waldorf Astor by private contract, no mention being made of the price paid. - Philadelphia Times

Examination Stories.

Isis of Oxford tells two good examination stories. The first is a candidate who in the divinity viva voce was asked to translate a portion of the gospels. As he did not stop at the end of that portion the examiner said to him: "Thank you, Mr. ---, that will do. We are quite satisfied with your paper." "Oh, please," was the answer, do let me go on. I should so like to find out how this story ends." Modern history furnishes the other. One candidate's paper in the Oxford local examination contained the following luminous and surprising passage, "General Wolfe boldly attacked the Arabian knights without waiting for the other three corpses to come up. "

marbor Mistress Fuller.

Miss Fuller, a newspaper woman, has lately been appointed harbor mistress of Tacoma, Wash. It is said that thus far she has done remarkably good work, keeping all records pertaining to the extensive shipping business of the city in perfect shape. Last month she made out the harbor master's report for the year, the first report of the kind ever made out by an American woman.

Fierce Battle on the Island Late Yesterday.

ONE

The Other Refusing to Face It After the Contest Had Amused the Crowd For Some Time-Mr. Cullom Will Do Nothiog, as He Did Not Witness the Main.

A party of more than 50 sports witnessed a lively cocking main on Babb's island late vesterday afternoon. It was for $30 a side, and one bird won a signal

The battle was the result of a controversy over the merits of the birds. The party were rowed to the island by shanty beat residents of that vicinity, and the pit was arranged near the spot occupied by a camping club last summer.

One bird proved a winner from the start. A dozen times were the fighters pitted against each other, and three times did the other run away. It was after five o'clock when the party returned to the city, the battle having started soon after four. It was stated that about $200 changed hands as a result of the battle. Some of the best known sports of the city were present.

Mr. Cullom heard of the battle and appeared on the scene, but the fight was over. He examined the crowd carefully, secured their names, and then went away. His son said he could do nothing, because he had not witnessed the fight, but a careful watch would be kept for such crowds in the future.

It is announced that arrangements were made last night for a big main to take place next week. A considerable amount of money has already been posted. The battles will take place near the city, but not on the island.

FUN FOR THE SPORTS.

They Laugh at the Statement of a Member of Council.

Challis, a member of council, reported to the body of which he is a representative, that "the police committee had investigated the fast driving, but could and no particulars."

The statement is simply a ridiculous one, and even the sports who did the racing are laughing in their sleeves at Mr. Challis, member of council, and terming him a "guy." The matter has become a farce, made so by just such statements as Challis has made. The News Review has no desire to see the men who did the racing fined, or made to suffer in any way. The object of this paper was to give the matter such full publicity as to compel the city officials to take cognizance of the dangerous work going on upon our most public thoroughfares, and thus avoid the maiming or killing of one or more persons.

One of the men who was engaged in racing said yesterday to a prominent eitizen, at one time prominent in an official position in this county:

"That report of Challis makes me smile. Of course we were racing, and half the city knew it. We expected to be fined, and I had the $9.60 in readiness to hand over to the proper officer. Ofcourse we did wrong. I'm sorry for it. and shall not so offend again. Our racing blood was at fever heat and we reckoned little of consequences, in the shape of fines, at the time."

In the face of such a statement as the above, given in the presence of witnesses, does not the statement of Counoilman Challis savor strongly of one of two things, namely: Either absolute premeditation to shield the lawbreakers, or complete unfitness as a member of an investigating committee? "Turn on the light." Selah.

RELIC OF PAST AGE.

Century Ota Newspaper That Is Remarkaby Well Preserved.

Mr. Glenn Brown, the architect, has an interesting relic in the shape of an old newspaper, probably one of the oldest publications to be found in this country. It is The Virginia Gazette and Alexandria Advertiser, published in Alexandria. The copy is dated Thurs-(3y. April 25, 1793. The motio of the The capital prize was a hotel, with all paper, which is printed under the title, s as follows:

) thou by whose almoshty nod the scale of empires rises or alternate falls, Send forth the saving virtues round this land!

There is no mention made of the names of the publishers or editors, but en advertisement, which is inserted, asks for rags, old seives, fishing nets and the like to be brought to the office, so that paper can be made from it. From this it would seem that the firm manufactured its own paper.

In the news columns, which form but a small portion of the paper, the advertisements covering a greater part, is a dispatch dated London, Feb. 25 previous, giving an account of an insurrection in Ireland. There are also published Paine's reasons for preserving the life of Louis Capet. The plan of the new French constitution is given and

One of the most interesting advertisements in the paper is that of a lottery. The lottery, by the way, was never held, as much opposition was developed against it. Samuel Blodgett was the one whose beirs claimed a large portion of the national capital.

There are several advertisements for renaway slaves, offering rewards of from $6 to $16. There is an offer of a reward of $40, which would seem large compared with those offered for the runaway slaves, for eight bushels of clover seed, stolen from Mount Vernon. The advertisement goes on to state that the clover seed was stolen from the granary and is supposed to have been taken by negroes. It is signed by Antheny Whiting, who was Washington's

There is an advertisement in the paper of the celebrated horse Eclipse, from which many of the thoroughbred horses of the present day have descended. There is also an advertisement of the opening of the city tavern at the sign of the "Bunch of Grapes" by John Wise. The statement is made that northern and southern mails will arrive at the office until Nov. 1 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 6 p. m.

On one of the pages is a song composed for Lodge No. 10 "of Charlestown," commonly called Portobacco.

The paper consists of four pages of four columns each. The size of the sheets is about 12 by 18 inches. The paper was published Thursdays of each week. The s's were all like f's. The paper has been remarkably well preserved. - Washington Star.

13TH YEAR. NO. 219.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1898.

TWO CENTS

HINTS OF NAVAL MEN.

Seeming Straws That Indicate Cause of Explosion.

THE BOILERS DID NOT EXPLODE.

Sampson's Wrecking Recommendations Construed to Point to a Magazine Explosion-Sigsbee's Request Indicates Spontaneous Combustion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-The arrival of a mail in Washington from Key West bringing several private letters from naval officers lately attached to the Maine caused a wave of excitement to run ever the departments and the capitol, for there were all sorts of rumors as to the contents of these letters, very few of which rumors in point of fact had any sound basis. The only feature so far as could be discovered of real importance as throwing light on the cause of the explosion contained in the letters was the statement that the two after boilers in the after boiler space were all of the eight boilers of the Maine that were under steam at the time of the explosion. This fact had a negative value, for it disposed at once of the theory that an exploding boiler had caused the wreck. The experts all say that by no possibility could the after boilers explosion have wrecked the fore part of the Maine and left the after part almost unharmed.

Much interest was shown in a dis-patch received from Admiral Sicard giving the recommendations of Captain Sampson of the court of inquiry as to the raising of the wreck. The view of naval officers was that Captain Sampson and his associates were giving this advice, not as a court, but as officers in a position to speak as to the best methoths to be adopted for wrecking the Maine. Various interpretations were put on the question "forward half completely destroyed." This was regarded as a partial confirmation of the theory that the forward magazine had exploded, as that is one of the most im-portant portions of the forward half of the ship. At the same time it was held by some naval authorities that the destruction of the forward half of the ship did not necessarily mean that the forward magazine had exploded, as this might still be intact, although a part of the general wreckage. In the absence of an explicit statement as to the forward magazine there was a disposition not to accept any implied so as to its destruction.

Evidently the president of the court of inquiry is fearful of the effect upon the public of ill judged attempts to account for the destruction of the Maine, for he telegraphed Secretary Long, doubtless having in mind certain publications, as follows:

"HAVANA, Feb. 24.—Any reported interview with divers untrue. Every precantion has been taken. Officers always present."

This brief statement disposes of all the allegations that have been made pro and con as to the blowing up of the forward magazines.

The officers here are still thinking of Captain Sigsbee's request to be furnished with the plans of the Maine's section through the magazines and coal bunker pockets. The reference to the latter is particularly interesting, and leads to a desire to be informed on the exact quantity and quality of the coal supply at the time of the explosion.

It is said that these pocket bunkers are rarely emptied, being designed as much for the protection of the ship against gunshots as for capacity to hold coal. One expert said that these bunkers, in his experience, have not been emptied in months. All of this has to do with the spontaneous combustion theory, as the bunkers are above the magazines and might have set off even the safe brown powder if the latter were exposed to a degree of heat above 600 degrees for some time.

The request besides may show that Captain Sigsbee is not yet satisfied as to the cause of the explosion, notwithstanding the expressions that have been attributed to him by unauthorized per-

Simultaneous with the departure of the Texes and Nashville from Galveston to Kev West the Marblehead will leave New Orleans and the Detroit will leave Mobile for Key West. These movements are also a part of the orders given early this month, before the Maine disaster. The Montgomery is also due at Key West, having left San Domingo for Key West on Feb. 16.

The result will be to bring together again the large number of vessels under Admiral Sicard at Key West and the immediate vicinity. These will be the New York, now at Tortugas; the Indiana, Massachusetts, Texas, Iowa, Marblehead, Detroit, Nashville, Montgomery, Eriscson and Cushing. The torpedo boats Porter and Dupont are in dry dock at Mobile, and are not expected to be ready to go to Key West for several days. The Brooklyn is also cruising in the West Indies, at present enroute from St. Thomas to Vera Cruz.

The big double turreted monitor Terror remains under orders to stay in Hampton Roads until further notice. It is likely that she will be sent to take the place of the Maine in the North Atlantic squadron, if not needed elsewhere immedia oly. The officials, however, are loath to encumber the battleships and speedier craft with the Terror, as she might retard the execution of manœuvres.

THE SENATE SOBERED.

Would Not Pass a Cuban Belligerency Resolution For Fear of Precipitating War With Spain-Even Morgan Fought It-A Crisis Acknowledged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-While the senate had under consideration the dipplomatic and consular appropriation bill a sharp debate on the C an situation was precipitated by Mr. Allen (Neb.), who offered as an amendment the reso lution passed by the senate a year ago recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents. The debate became general and occupied nearly four hours. In the course of a reply to the preliminary statement by Mr. Allen, Mr. Morgan (Ala.) said that this country's relations with Spain at the present time were seriously strained and that intervention by the United States, which a year ago would have been inoffensive, would now be a cause of war. He expressed the opinion that the Cuban affair would eventually be submitted to follow. The forts the arbitrament of the sword between the United States and Spain, but he did not want war precipitated by rash acts of legislation.

"If, however," said Mr. Morgan, "any senator believes in a declaration of war, and will draw up such a declaration with sufficient and proper grounds upon which to base it, I will vote for

At this point Mr. Allen interrupted Mr. Morgan to disclaim any intention of making a declaration of war against Spain. He expressed the opinion that his amendment could in no way be construed into such a declaration.

Mr. Foraker (O.) thought the day not far distant when the time for action by this country would arrive, and that the chief magistrate of the nation ought to rejoice that the legislative branch of the government was prepared to support him in asserting American rights: Mr. Thurston (Neb.) counseled calmness and prudence, for he believed that the country was rapidly drifting into a war with Spain. "We ought to have patience," said he, "and wait as a great and powerful people, not in fear, but in hope, that some satisfactory conclusion of the present difficulty may be reached."

Mr. Hoar (Mass.) maintained that the floor of the senate was no proper place for angry discussions of international affairs, and that no senator ought to utter anything that might not well be uttered by the president of the United States. He expressed his willingness, however, to give his support to the executive should the time for action arrive, provided the proposed action was based upon clear and unmistakable fact.

Mr. Allen's amendment was ruled out of order and the appeal from the ruling taken by the Nebraska senator was laid on the table by a vote of 51 to 5. Early in the day Mr. Allen offered a resolution providing for a committee of five senators, who should go to Cuba and ascertain the precise situation on the island. Under the rules it went over np. til today.

Not Necessary to Fire a Shot In Case of War.

YOUNG SPANIARDS LIKELY GUILTY

A General Belief Among Americans In Cuba That They Blew Up the Maine. Anchorage Suspicious-One Forward Magazine Did Not Explode.

HAVANA, Feb. 24 .- The divers at work on the Maine having discovered cases of brown powder for the ten-inch gun unexploded, and believing that others unexploded will be found in the ten-inch magazine on the starboard side forward, the conviction grows that this magazine did not blow up. If this be so, and many have insisted from the first that it is, the further conviction is forced that the explosion which wrecked the Maine came from the outside on the

The highest American officials here are confident that General Blanco and the Spanish officials had no knowledge of the conception or execution of a plot to blow up the Maine, if such a plot existed, but they believe the younger Spanish officers were to blame. It is pointed out that it would not be impossible to plant a mine of wet and dry gun cotton near where a foreign vessel was directed to anchor, such a mine communicating with an electric battery on shore.

It is regarded an interesting point that the Maine, for the first time during her stay in the harbor, lay at the particular spot where she was at the time of the catastrophe, and it is said, though not officially verified, that she was the first foreign vessel moored to this buoy since the troubles in Cuba grew acute.

All stories as to lax discipline on the Maine are without a shadow of truth.

In reply to a question put by the cor-respondent to a high American official as to what the outcome would beif it was proved the disaster was due to an outside agency, the official in question said: "Sir, the American people could not be restrained. I mean war. Still, I doubt whether it would be necessary to fire a shot. Admiral Sicard could anchor the Iowa, the Indiana, the Massachusetts and the New York outside Havana harbor to prevent the ingress of the food supplies, without which the city could not exist a fortnight.

"If Admiral Sicard were to demanded the surrender of Havana, giving 24 hours for the removal of the women and children, surrender would are old structures and could be demolished by a sixpounder.

"If General Blanco should decline to surrender, the Spanish merchants here, who represent 80 per cent of the property and pay 75 per cent of the taxes of the island, would compel him to accede to Admiral Sicard's terms."

SECRET COURT OF INQUIRY.

Witnesses Examined, but No Information Is Given Out.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The United States court of inquiry into the loss of the Maine met and examined Dr. Honeberger, Paymaster Ray and Chief Engineer Howell of the battleship, and several other witnesses, whose names are not now obtainable.

The captain says he has no idea of the length of time the court will remain in session here. It depends upon the testimony, and new features requiring further investigation may develop at any time.

Captain Sampson added that sooner or later every survivor of the Maine will be examined by the court, which seems to imply that sessions for that purpose will be held at Key West.

Although this information is meager, it is absolutely all Captain Sampson will give to the press. The correspondents see him by appointment twice daily, but there is a rigid rule to observe silence until the facts in the case have developed through the testimony presented.

WRECKING TUG AT HAVAVA.

Strong Wind Adds to the Difficulties of the Divers.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The Right Arm of the Merritt and Chapman Derrick and Wrecking company is moored about 200 yards from the poop of the Maine. The wrecking tug looks powerful enough to move a mountain, yet it is reported that she is not supplied, owing to her hurried departure for this port, with all the apparatus she needs for the work which is before her.

Captain McGee, the commander of the Right Arm, has reported to Captain Sigsbee, as ordered by the navy department, and will act under Captain Sigsbee's orders, which are not yet formulated, or at least are not make known.

A strong wind made the harbor rough and added to the difficulty of the divers, as the electric lights are worked from a battery on board the lighthouse tender Maugrove, 200 yards distant.

NO WAR, SAYS HANNA.

Firmly Believes the Maine Was Destroyed by Accident.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Sensational reports having been circulated that Senator Hanna had expressed the belief that a conflict between the United States and Spain was imminent the attention of the senator was called to them. He emphatically denied them,

"I do not believe there is anything in the Maine incident or in our relations with Spain regarding Cuba that will cause war. I am firmly of the opinion that the explosion of the Maine was due to an accident, and I think that the naval court of inquiry will reach the same conclusion."

"And congress will do nothing?" "What is there for congress to do? There is no information except a lot of sensational stories upon which to base all this talk of war. Even the secretary of the navy has no information, and as long as the president and the secretary of navy and all the rest of the cabinet keep cool and quiet there is no need for the rest of us to get alarmed. No," said Senator Hanna in conclusion, 'I honestly and frankly do not see any reason for the excitement that is being created. There will be no war.'

Canton's Ex-Mayor Charged With Postoffice Robbery.

2,000 STAMPS FOUND IN HIS DESK.

Bail In the Sum of $1,000 Furnished For Court-Other Arrests Made-Appleton Publishing Company Furnished the Clue That Caused Arrest.

CANTON, O., Feb. 24.-Attorney William J. (Dick) Piero has been arrested at the instance of Postoffice Inspector A. P. Owens on suspicion of complicity in the burglary of the Massillon postoffice last Sunday morning. In his office desk were found nearly 2,000 2stamps, 23 1-cent stamps and a number of stamps of obsolete styles; letters to and from noted crooks, percussion caps, fuse and other tools and appliances used by burglars. Piero disclaimed all knowledge of how the stamps and other articles reached his desk. Affidavits were filed against him in local courts pending action in the United States court, charging him with receiving stolen goods and having burglar tools in his possession. On the latter charge he furnished $1,000 bond.

Piero served several terms as mayor of this city, and has long been a prominent practicing attornev. Until recently, when an assignment proved the contrary, he was counted a wealthy man, and was conspicuous on the board of trade, real estate and general public enterprises.

The arrest of Piero was followed shortly by that of William Henderson and James C. Rowley, and it is said other arrests are to follow. The authorities claim this is but the beginning of the rounding up of a large crowd of postoffice robbers, who have been operat-ing in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania for some time.

"Chub" Piero, a nephew of W. J., and "Dutch" Frank, two local characters, were arrested the first of the week for burglary, and they were interviewed in jail by the officers before the attorney's desk was raided.

The clue against Piero is said to have come from the Cincinnati offices of the Appleton Publishing company. This house used newspaper stamps are never sold on matter mailed, and to inquiries responded that the stamps came to them in a remittance from

MISSIGNARY CONVENTION.

Students and Others at the Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24.—There are 1,500 student delegates and 500 missionaries, professors and representatives of missionary societies in attendance at the third international convention of the student volunteer movement. In spite of the lack of news from Havana, congress is behaving itself very well these last few days.

Congress seems to have forgotten that the Ohio river is something more than the stretch between Pittsburg and the Beaver.

GENERAL LEE'S salary is $6,000 a year, and if he is interviewed as often as the yellow kid journals quote him, he certainly earns it.

THE Wellsville man who walked to Lisbon has probably made the trip in a buggy at this season of the year, and knows the hardships and trials occasioned by the almost impassable roads of in the evening they are omnipresent in this county.

SUPPRESSING the facts in the Maine investigation will not increase the popularity of the government. The American people are opposed to mystery when matters of great public interest are involved.

Hon. John P. Jones has been interviewed regarding his congressional aspirations, but acknowledged that on that question he was "as dumb as an oyster." If he continues in that way he will not be disappointed.

THERE are a sufficient number of organized wheelmen in Ohio to compel some action in the direction of good roads if they but used their influence intelligently. Their united influence public corporations, such as street railwould work wonders if they only brought it to bear on the legislature.

COUNCIL should investigate carefully the needs of a new reservoir before it decides to spend $15,000 on improvements for the water department. The taxpayers do not object to legitimate expenses, but they will not endure extravagance. As President Peach suggested, the matter should be carefully dis-

THE killing of a negro in South Carolina for no other reason than that he dared to assume the duties of postmaster after having been duly appointed, seems to show that Uncle Sam has some irregularities to correct at home before he seriously rebukes Spain for its cruelty in Cuba. The power of the government should be invoked to the limit in punishing the perpetrators of the foul deed.

THE talk of war concinues, and there is no possibility of it dying out until the fallen into their traps unawares. announcement is made that Spain can in no way be held responsible for the destruction of the Maine. But it is not and unmake statesmen that they may without its uses. The government is awakening to the fact that the sea coast is sadly in need of defenses and governors are finding the weak spots in the National guard. Everywhere the country is being taught that we must in time of peace prepare for war.

ONLY GOOD MEN.

The very best men obtainable should be placed in nomination by the Republican party March 19. There should be no compromise with any element that favors the non-enforcement of law. Just now the party cannot afford it. A move in that direction means that other candidates, the representatives of a party that will give good government, will be elected. Men who are above suspicion, men who will do their duty are in demand. There are plenty of them in the Republican party, and if we would win they must be chosen as candidates.

The News Review. AN IMPORTANT FACTOR

Is the Legislative Lobby or Third House.

BIG CORPORATIONS REPRESENTED

Which They Seek to Protect.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLUMBUS, Feb. 24.—The lobby, a most important factor in shaping legislation, is seldom taken to account in the newspaper reports from the capitol. This suits the lobbyist, for he always works under cover, but the public has little conception of the potent power of the "third house," which is a common name for the horde of wire pullers that infest the legislature. Even a large proportion of members do not realize this power of the lobby. Many a legislator has been farmed out and voted by outside influence and he never knew it. These lobbyists comprise all sorts and conditions of men-and women, toofrom the most learned of corporation lawyers, to the rural township official with his pants in his boots. These men have many missions, from protecting property interests valued at millions of dollars to the passage of some little local bill for a transfer of funds, which should never have come before the legislature at all. There are several hundred such lobbyists haunting the statehouse. They crowd the rails of the house and senate, their persistence seriously interfering with business; they way lay members in the corriders, and the hotels and cafes along High street. Each has a scheme, either he wants a bill passed, or he wants a bill killed. legislation touches his business and pocketbook, or he may be in the employ of someone else.

Of all these lobbyists the attorneys employed by the great corporations are the most important, and sometimes the most dangerous. These attorneys are among the best legal lights of the state. Many of them have formerly been members of the legislature, and they are wise in all the tricks of the trade. Some of these men are employed year after year and they know mor about the inside workings of legislation than the legislators themselves. Quasiways, steam railroads, gas and electric light campanies, the Standard Oil company and other trusts, are constantly menaced with unfriendly legislation. Innumerable bills to restrict their rights and priveleges and to increase their taxes are being constantly introduced. To prevent damage from this source the corporations keep a large lobby at the capitol during the entire session, and expend for this purpose great sums of money. I do not mean to say that this money is used corruptly, but talented lawyers can not be hired for the price of day labor, and these gentlemen are liberal spenders when it comes to entertaining a member of the legislature. There are half a hundred lobbyists that will fit into the above description, and whose faces have become more familiar with each succeeding general assembly. But hardly one of these men will acknowledge his true occupation. They are known by the wise ones, however, although many members have gether. The home of one is at the capital city and the other lives in Toledo In politics they are close chums, and, although both Republicans, these gentlemen organized and led the fight against Senator Hanna. In this contest they were barely beaten, but they succeeded in wresting the control of the house from the Republican majority and turned it over to those friendly to themselves; they also turned the senate over Some of the Best Attorneys of the State to the Democrats. This victory was Are In Columbus Caring For Interests more substantial in results than would That Have Many Millions at Stake, and have been the defeat of Hanna, which was purely a matter of personal spite.

Having engineered the organization of the legislature these two men keep their hands on the throttle, and with the assistance of a select coterie of lesser lights, continue to control the machine they have made. It does not need a profound mind to understand that if these men should be employed as lobbyists they would have great influence. That they are so employed by varied interests there is no doubt.

The Toledo gentleman spends most of his time in Columbus without any visible means of support. This is not because he can not maintain himself where and how he likes, for he is wealthy, but it is significant. It is also noticeable that his boon companions are the little clique of Republican bolters and a few of the Democratic leaders who have the most to do with shaping the work of the assembly. These men consult him continually, and make their rendezvous in the office of his Columbus friend. They are seen together at the theater and other public places, and the Toledo politician seems to have a most fatherly feeling for the young men who are making the laws.

While these two men stand high in power among the lobbyists, they are only a minute portion in the matter of numbers. Besides the lobbyists regularly employed there is always a floating contingent. These floaters are of all sizes and shapes, so to speak, and travel in He may be interested because certain bunches of from one to one hundred. From now on the lobby will be composed of nearly a thousand people for every legislative day. Sometimes matters of great local moment to a city, such as a ripper bill, will cause excursions to be run to the capital with as many as a thousand in one party. Then, there are the women. Although comparatively a small portion of the lobby, they are exceedingly persistent, as Mr. Hazlett discovered when he introduced a bill to repeal woman's suffrage.

The lobbyists follow the members day and night, they meet him when he arises in the morning, they call him out of his seat, they will not let him eat his dinner in peace, and if he is of a convivial nature they do their best to make life rosy for him during the greater portion of the night. Members will tell you that they do not care for the lobbyist and they will prate about their independence, but nevertheless the outside influence is great and if a member can not be reached in one way-there are others. Thus it will be seen that the legislature has some features besides long winded orations and dull committee meetings. What is seen on the surface often gives no sign of the tempest beneath, and many times the public is entirely misled as to the true reasons for laws that are placed on the statute books, or for certain political maneuvers.

BLACQUE WILSON.

Sheridan and the Joke.

Sheridan, himself a brilliant orator as well as a shrewd observer, was one day asked how it was he got on so well in the house of commons. "Well," he said, "I soon found out that the majorit; were fools, but all loved a joke, and I determined to give them what they liked." The great advantage of a joke is that it puts the speaker at once on good terms with his audience Hence Cicero recommends it for an exordium. A common way of winning the good will of an audience is flattery When the Jews brought down the orator Tertullus to accuse Paul, Tertullus began his speech with flattery of King Agrippa, "Since by thee we enjoy," and so on. Another way, a subtle form of flat tery, is to describe yourself as a native of the same place or county as those you are addressing. The forensic formula, the fustian apostrophe to the 12 "intelligent and patriotic and high minded men" whom the rhetorical Buzfuz sees before him, is played out, but it has its modern equivalents. - Westminster Re-

BIG CROWD SAW BOUTS

Athletic Club Entertained Last Night.

CLEVER BOXING AND WRESTLING

Mike Farragher and John Parry Were the Star Attractions, the Former Challenging Any Man In America at 130 Pounds-The Other Events.

The fourth annual entertainment of the East Liverpool Athletic club, held last evening, was attended by a large crowd, and was very successful from every standpoint, the bouts being the best ever seen in the city.

Fred Anderson acted as master of ceremonies, while John Howarth, of Beaver Falls, was referee, and George Perry timekeeper. After an overture by Nowling's orchestra William O'Connell and Frank Salisbury were introduced and proceeded to spar five three-minute rounds. It was a very pretty match, but O'Connell had the best of it in every round, as he had the weight and reach in his favor, but Salisbury, although suffering from a sore wrist, kept his opponent busy, and won hearty applause for his clever work.

The five round bout between Thomas Potts and Fred Waxenfelter, Beaver Falls, was one of the warmest of the evening. Waxenfelter was a great deal the heavier and was the fiercer puncher, but was too slow on his feet, and Potts easily proved himself to be by far the cleverer of the two, landing on his opponent whenever he desired. In the fourth round Waxenfelter received to see through the trouble, so he begged a blow on the nose which caused the blood to flow. The bout brought forth the warmest applause of the evening.

The wrestling match between L. Lutz, Beaver Falls, and Rube Barber, New Castle, Pa., catch as catch can, best two out of three falls, amateur rules governing, was one of the most interesting affairs of the evening. Neither secured a fall in the first round, but both won hearty applause by their clever work. In the second round Lutz secured the first fall in 2.15, but in the third Barber succeeded in throwing his antagonist in 3.20. The men are very evenly matched in weight and strength.

The orchestra played an overture, and then the event of the evening was annonnced, a 10 round bout between-John Parry, of Homestead, and Mike Farragher, of Youngstown.

Before the bout commenced Fred Anderson, on behalf of Manager O'Malley, announced that Farragher would meet any man in America at 130 pounds.

Farragher was the larger man and had slightly the best of it in the reach, but Perry proved himself very clever and made things warm for his opponent. Ten very warm rounds were fought, and both men were greeted with applause by their clever work. Farragher was a winner, and should they have been sparring for points there is little doubt but that he would have received the decision.

The entertainment was conducted in a first class manner, all whistling and cheering being prohibited.

MORMONS MEETING.

Members Are Represented Zanesville.

Fred W. Webb, of Third street, left this morning for Zanesville, where he will remain several days attending the annual convention of the Mormons of this section. Arrangements will be made at the meeting to have a number of elders tour the states in the interest of the sect during the summer.

Elder A. K. Hausen, of Glenwood, Utah, who has been spending several days in the city, left yesterday for Zanesville. He conducted several meetings while here and seemed much pleased with his work.

On the River.

H'S IN SHORTHAND.

Many Trials of an Englishman With His Stenographer.

An Englishman who drops his h's and aspirates his a's and a stenographer and typewriter who spells phonetically from dictation make a combination from which trouble is sure to result un less the "copy" is carefully revised. The manager of one of the most important manufacturing plants in Cleveland is an Englishman. Not long ago he employed a young man to act as his stenographer, and one of the first things that the latter was called upon to do was the "taking down" of a letter to the manager's wife, who was away at a summer resort. Being a busy man, the manager didn't take the trouble to look at the letter after it had been typewritten, but when his wife answered it there was a hot time for the stenographer. "My dear Henry," she wrote, what on earth do you mean by calling me 'Hannah' and our little Horace 'Orris?' I will admit that this sounds like you, but why do you make a joke of it before your employees?"

Of course the fond husband and father didn't know what it all meant, and so he wrote for an explanation, when his first letter was sent back to him.

One glance at it and be rushed over to his stenographer, excitedly threw the sheet down before him and demanded, 'There, what do you mean, sir, by writing my wife's name down 'An-

"Anna?" replied the young man. 'Let me see. No, I've got it Hannah, all right."

"But," said the manager, who was furious, "it's not 'Annah, -Hanna!"

"Well, there it is, Hannah-H-a-n-

"' 'Annah be dashed!" exclaimed the manager. "A-n-n-a, Hanna! Can't you understand English, you blanked fool?"

By this time the stenographer began off upon the plea that having had a swelling in one of his ears he had not been able to hear very well. But it cost him nearly a week's salary to square things with the other boys in the office, and he always deems it best to hide when he hears the manager's wife in the hall. -Cleveland Leader.

A BUSINESS PARABLE.

You Cannot Fail to Appreciate the Point In This Story.

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat, which he sold not to a single grain merchant, but to 1,800 different dealers, a bushel each. A few of them paid him in cash, but far the greater number said it was not convenient then; they would pay later. A few months passed, and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this?" he said. "My me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough to pay expenses.'

So he posted up a public notice and asked all those who owed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said, "Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay one of these days," forgetting that though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke, and running to his granary found his 1,800 bushels of wheat still safe there. He had only been dreaming.

Moral. -The next day the man went to the publisher of his paper and said: "Here, sir, is the pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription is due you can depend on me to pay it promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how it feels to have one's honestly earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."-- Union Signal.

His Alibi.

Once upon a time the late Sir Frank Lockwood, while attending a police court, noticed that the magistrates were performing their duties in a very expeditious manner, and he commented on the fact to a superintendent of police. "Yes," answered the superintendent, who was pompous and none too well educated, "their worships always dispenses with justice very fast." Some years ago he got a prisoner off by proving an alibi. Some time afterward the judge met him and said, "Well, Lockwood, that was a very good alibi.' "Yes, my lord," was the answer. "I had three offered me, and I think I selected the best."

Mervousness.

This term was first used by a minister of state who affected to ridicule the warnings of those who were constantly drawing the attention of the two houses of parliament to Russia's steady advance toward India. The term was a happy one in its way, but time ere long proved that the alarmists were correct. and the said minister, so far as I remember, deprecated its being constant. ly brought up against him.

This word was coined by the Duke of Argyll, who, in a speech in the house of lords, was deriding the well founded apprehensions of those who feared that the Russians would make themselves masters of Merv, in Turkistan. They took it in 1883-4. - Notes and Queries.

LAND OF THE INCAS.

A RETURNED GOLD SEEKER'S IMPRES-SIONS OF PERU.

The Mines Are Said to Be Exhausted. Americans Are Warned Against Going There-Natives Are Lazy and Thriftless. The Difficulties of Transportation.

Josiah Johns, brother of Mrs. W. J. Carrier, is in Sacramento, having returned a few days ago from Peru, whither he went with a party last March during the gold excitement.

Speaking recently of his experiences to a reporter, he said: "I cannot too strongly warn Americans, whether capitalists or laborers, against going to Peru with the idea of benefiting themselves, for they will surely find themselves dead broke in a short time in a strange country-and a very hard one to make a living in-unless they take time by the forelock, as I did, and leave the country while they are able to do so. In all my travels there I found only one man who was making anything, and he had taken a contract on a mine 17,000 feet above the sea level.

'We were given glowing accounts of the marvelous richness of the placers on one or two rivers, where the Indians dive down and bring up their hands full of the golden sands, but it is a miserable lie and has been the cause of leaving many a poor fellow there and stranding him. We prospected the rivers and found that there was no gold in them. When Pizarro conquered Peru, the incas, who were a highly intelligent race, had collected vast amounts of gold-nobody will ever know how much-from the sands of the streams. Pizarro and his men set the natives at work to collect more, and the work has been going on ever since. Then came the Portuguese, who were so successful that the Spaniards got jealous of them and drove them away. The result is that the placers were all mined out long ago. It is very hard prospecting also, as the streams are swift and the mountain sides rough and very steep.

"There are rich silver mines there, but they are very high up, 17,000 feet or more, and the air is so rare that a white man cannot work, and the work is done by Indians. The native Peruvians work very little, making the Indians do their work. I know of only one successful mine as low down as 6.500 feet. There is very little show, too, for a man to find employment in other directions than mining, for he must come into competition with the Indians, who are poorly paid.

'The native Peruvians are the laziest people you can imagine. They not only 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept make no provision for next week, but none even for the next day, a meal ahead being about the extent of their solicitude. Time is no object to them, and they pay very little attention to it. They do not like foreigners and delay and discourage them in every possible way. It does not make much difference whether they are Americans, English or German-they are all 'gringoes' to the Peruvians, as they are to his Mexican brethren, and he dislikes them all.

"Harry Meiggs is about the only American that has ever done well in Peru, and I do not know how he ever managed to get so good a show given to him, they dislike strangers so. He built a good road, and it is considerably used, but it seems funny to me how they run their trains. A train runs three times a week to the Titicaca basin, and it takes its time. It runs to Arequipa and then stops for the night. The next morning it starts again and runs all day, stopping again at night, and takes three days to get to the basin. 'On the Pacific side it is a dry, rain less region, but on the Amazon side it rains nearly every day. When one gets up into the cordilleras, it is all right as long as the sun is up, but in the night it gets very cold. I had very hard work to find transportation, and my experience illustrates the character of the people. When you have gone as far as the railroad will take you, you must get mules to go farther, and there is the rub. If you get mules, their owner will agree to take you a certain distance, but he will take you no farther, nor will he give you a reason for his refusal to do so. After I arrived at the end of the railroad I was 16 days trying to get mules before I succeeded. The superintendent of a mine who did me many great favors after some days of entreaty persuaded a rich Peruvian to send his mules to take me 150 miles, but he would not take me a bit farther, and I had to wait there 16 days longer before I obtained more mules. There is no use of fretting, for it does not do a particle of good, and money is no object to such a people.

'When you arrive at a town, the gobernador must be seen. He takes you to his house, where there is plenty of room, and you can get all the supplies you need in the shape of food from him by paying well for it. Of course he is in no burry to have you go, and only diplomacy starts you on your journey again, for he takes his time to help you.

'As I said before, there is very little show for a white man. There is nothing left in mining that is worth talking about. I know of one mine where a whole lot of money has been sested. but they only strike gold in pockets.

The incas mined the country, and after them came the Spaniards and Portuguese, and they have pretty well cleaned up the ground. There is little left except in the very high altitudes, where even the natives can do little and employ the Indians to do the work. White men will do well to give the country a wide berth.'

Mr. Johns is a man of much more than average intelligence and does not look like a man who is easily discouraged. He will soon be on his road to Alaska when the spring opens to try for better luck there. - Sacramento Record Union.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

How Representative Berry Surreptitiously Ate an Apple In the House.

Senator Allen of Nebraska has found a clever way to get around the senate rules that forbid smoking in the lobby. As those about the capitol know Senator Allen is a man of almost heroic size. The contrast is, therefore, all the more apparent when the senator smokes a wee small cigar, smaller than the average cigarette, but nicely fashioned and of good material. In fact, the tobacco is so well chosen that there is a minimum of smoke. As Senator Allen does not care for a heavy smoke the little cigar is just the thing. There is such a small amount of smoke from it when consumed slowly that the guardians of the peace about the corridors would hesitate a long while before declaring that the senator had his cigar lighted. Therefore he has his quiet smoke without interruption when tramping about the capitol.

The stalwart Representative Berry of Kentucky likes apples as well as the average Kentuckian likes whisky. So yesterday as he sat at his desk in the house, going over a mass of Kentucky correspondence that had accumulated before him with every incoming mail, hunger for an apple came over him, it might be added, with a force like the thirst that very, very frequently comes over the average Kentuckian for something strong to drink. As Mr. Berry glanced at letter after letter he thrust his hand from time to time down into his coat pocket, where an apple was reposing. The house being in session and Mr. Berry a man who always wishes to observe the proprieties, he appeared reluctant to devour the fruit.

But at last he drew the apple forth a little above the desk, and when General Henderson had attracted the house with one of his eloquent periods Mr. Berry stole a bite, just as a schoolboy might do when his teacher is not looking. Finally Mr. Berry stole another bite, and another bite, all the while proceeding diligently with his correspondence, and he continued to eat surreptitiously from the apple till nothing was left but with renewed diligence.

Jimmie English, the round faced youth of diminutive stature who is one of the special employees on the Democratic side of the house, knows something about Speaker Reed's ideas of smoking. Jimmie is given to cigarettes, and recently, when the house was not in session, he comfortably bolstered himself up in a member's chair, elevated his feet to the desk, as some congressmen do, and was about to enjoy the fragrant weed.

But just at the time that Jimmie was first watching the curl of smoke from his cigarette the doors from the rear lobby swung and the mammoth form of Speaker Reed appeared. He stalked along the open space in front of the desk, cast his eye about the house and discovered the youthful offender.

"That's a pretty picture, Jimmie, isn't it?" was the speaker's comment. You know it is against the rules to smoke in here."

"But I'm not smoking a cigar, sir. It is only a cigarette," answered young English.

"That's worse," said the speaker. 'Get out of here." And when Jimmie wants to smoke "coffin tacks" now he seeks some other spot than the hall of representatives or the haunts of Speaker

No man in congress can produce on short notice more dangerous explosives than Representative Hilborn of California, the ranking Republican member of the house committee on naval affairs. While discussing the disaster to the Maine in the committee room recently Judge Hilborn stated that the only explosives in the forward magazine were 50,000 pounds of brown powder. "Just remain here for a moment," added the judge, "and I will show you some of that kind of powder."

He hastened to his desk in the hall of representatives and returned in a moment with a small paper package. Unwrapping it, he disclosed several small solid pieces in various symmetrical forms. Pointing to an octagonal shaped piece which had a round hole through the center of it, he said: "That is brown powder such as was in the forward magazine of the Maine. I will show you how it burns in the fire."

There was 'a scattering of spectators as Judge Hilborn walked boldly to the fireplace for the purpose of consuming the chunk of brown powder, which burned and sputtered without making any explosion. Drawing from the inside pocket of his coat a long, thin strip of SEA OF FLAME On the evening of November, 28th, 1878 fire broke out in the British ship Melanie loaded with 500 barrels of petroleum. An awful mass of flames shot up from the main hatch and the vessel quivered from stem te stern with explosion of the barrels. Her seams opened and the blazing petroleum poured out into the river, spreading a belt of fire around ber. The master and seamen jumped overboard. Captain Sharp, whose vessel was lying close-by, propelled a small boat through the blazing river and after a severe scorching and imminent peril, saved the seamen from a horrible death.

All over civilization there are thousands of men in more imminent danger than were those seamen. They are threatened with consumption or are already in the clutch of that deadly disease. If they only knew it, help is at hand. Dr. Pierce's Golden Med-ical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It also cures bronchitis, asthma, throat and nasal troubles and all diseases of the air passages. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve-tonie, It makes the appetite hearty, the digestion perfect and the liver active. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the product of that eminent specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, who, during the thirty years that he has been chief consulting physician to the great Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, has treated more cases than fifty ordinary physicians treat in a lifetime, Thousands given up by doctors, have testified to complete recovery under this mar velous medicine.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is speedily cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Read what this resident says about Doan's Kidney Pills. Mrs. Wm. James, who lives at 283 Third street, says: " I have been troubled off and on for the past eight years with a weakness of the back and kidneys, a dull aching pain the core. Then with a spirit of relief he across my loins, up under my shoulder attacked the pile of letters before him blades, and rheumatic pain in my right shoulder. I was very susceptible to changes in the weather, and was so bad at times that I could scarcely stand and support my own weight. The trouble affected my nervous system, causing frequent fluttering of the heart and a shortness of breath. I have generally resorted to porous plasters, but the relief was only temporary. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy, and got relief almost at once. The symptoms all left, and I have not felt any since. I feel much better and stronger generally."

QUESTION OF DISABILITY

Which Interests the Members of the Order In This State Was Discussed In the suit of Mrs. Lawrence-Grand Jury Returned 17 Indictments This Morning.

LISBON, Feb. 24.-[Special.]-Jennie L Lawrence became a member of the Protected Home circle at Lisbon in 1891. By a provision in her certificate, in case she became totally physically disqualified to earn a livlihood, she was to receive $500. By her application she agreed to comply with the rules of the order. When she joined, the laws said that a member should be considered totally physically disabled whenever he loses both legs at or above the ankle, both arms above the wrist, one leg and one arm, both eyes or who suffers total paralysis of the lower limbs. Mrs. Lawrence claims she knew nothing of this provision when she joined the order. Afterward it was changed by providing that a member was physically disabled only when these things happened. One year ago last January she was stricken by paralysis and her left arm and leg are useless. She asked for the $500, and upon refusal brought suit. The case was tried yesterday and went to the jury this morning. A verdict for the defendant was returned this afternoon, and the petit jury excused until next Wednesday.

Judge Smith charged that she is bound by all the laws in force when she became a member, and that any material change affecting her certificate must have her consent either at its adoption or afterward.

FOMENTATIONS.

How to Prepare Them When No Hot Water Is at Hand.

Fomentations of hot or cold water are often very useful, and every one should know how to give them. A flannel cloth may be folded, wrung out of hot or cold water as is desired and applied directly to the skin. It is much better after wringing out the flannel as dry as desired to fold it in a dry flannel cloth of one or two thicknesses before applying it to the patient. A little time is required for the heat of the fomentation to penetrate the dry flannel, and thus the skin is allowed an opportunity to acquire tolerance for the heat, and a higher degree of temperature can be borne if the moist cloth is brought directly into contact with the surface. The outer fold of dry fiannel will also serve to keep the cloth warm by preventing evaporation.

A hot fomentation is sometimes needed when no hot water is at hand. It is not necessary to wait for water to be heated in the usual way. Soak the flannel in cold water, wring as dry as desired, fold in a newspaper and lay upon the stove or wrap it about the stovepipe. In a few minutes it will be as warm as the patient can bear. The paper keeps the pipe from becoming moistened by the wet flannel and at the same time prevents the flannel from being soiled by contact with the pipe.

Fomentations thoroughly applied will relieve most of the local pains for which liniments, lotions and poultices are generally applied and are greatly to be preferred to these remedies since they are cleaner and aid nature more effectually in restoring the injured parts to a sound

The fomentation may be changed frequently, and after it has been removed massage may be given either by the person himself or another, so as to strengthen the part and promote a better circulation of blood in it.-Ex-

TELEGRAPHIC RECORD.

An Order Sent, Filled and Reported In Eighteen Seconds.

Telegraphers have a new record to break. A New York speculator wired an order to his Chicago broker. It was filled in the open market and a report of the transaction made to the man in New York all in 18 seconds. This new record was made recently in a wheat deal originating in the New York Produce Exchange and executed in the Chicago board of trade.

On this occasion the New York speculator found himself in a position where it was necessary to buy in a large quantity of May at the lowest obtainable price and to take full advantage of a shifting market. He wanted to get his grain at the bottom for the day and also to make sure his order was filled immediately when he gave the word. In just 18 seconds from the time he handed the telegram to the operator in the New York office an answer notifying him that the grain had been bought was in his hands.-St. Louis Republic.

Fierce Battle on the Island Late Yesterday.

WON OUT 600D

The Other Refusing to Face It After the Contest Had Amused the Crowd For Some Time-Mr. Cullom Will Do Nothing, as He Did Not Witness the Main,

A party of more than 50 sports witsessed a lively cocking main on Babb's island late yesterday afternoon. It was for $30 a side, and one bird won a signal

The battle was the result of a controversy over the merits of the birds. The party were rowed to the island by shanty beat residents of that vicinity, and the pit was arranged near the spot occupied by a camping club last summer.

One bird proved a winner from the start. A dozen times were the fighters pitted against each other, and three times did the other run away. It was after five o'clock when the party returned to the city, the battle having started soon after four. It was stated that about $200 changed hands as a result of the battle. Some of the best known sports of the city were present.

Mr. Cullom heard of the battle and appeared on the scene, but the fight was over. He examined the crowd carefully, secured their names, and then went away. His son said he could do nothing, because he had not witnessed the fight, but a careful watch would be kept for such crowds in the future.

It is announced that arrangements were made last night for a big main to take place next week. A considerable amount of money has already been posted. The battles will take place near the city, but not on the island.

FUN FOR THE SPORTS.

They Laugh at the Statement of a Member of Council.

Challis, a member of council, reported to the body of which he is a representative, that "the police committee had investigated the fast driving, but could and no particulars."

The statement is simply a ridiculous one, and even the sports who did the racing are laughing in their sleeves at Mr. Challis, member of council, and terming him a "guy." The matter has become a farce, made so by just such statements as Challis has made. The News Review has no desire to see the men who did the racing fined, or made to suffer in any way. The object of this paper was to give the matter such full publicity as to compel the city officials to take cognizance of the dangerous work going on upon our most public thoroughfares, and thus avoid the maiming or killing of one or more persons.

One of the men who was engaged in racing said yesterday to a prominent eitizen, at one time prominent in an offimial position in this county:

"That report of Challis makes me smile. Of course we were racing, and half the city knew it. We expected to be fined, and I had the $9.60 in readiness to hand over to the proper officer. Of course we did wrong. I'm sorry for it. and shall not so offend again. Our racing blood was at fever heat and we reckoned little of consequences, in the shape of fines, at the time."

In the face of such a statement as the above, given in the presence of witnesses, does not the statement of Councilman Challis savor strongly of one of tion in Ireland. There are also publishtwo things, namely: Either absolute premeditation to shield the lawbreakers, or complete unfitness as a member of an investigating committee? "Turn on the light." Selah.

STREETS LISTED FOR PAVING

Council Is Planning to Make a Great Many Improvements, and as the Members Will Almost All Be Re-Elected the Plans Will and said: Be Carried Out,

Council is preparing to make many improvements in the spring, and as almost all the members will probably be re-elected there is but little doubt the improvements will be made.

Huston road, or Bradshaw avenue, will be paved, while Avondale street will be graded to the Calcutta road, and the Minerva and Oak sidewalks laid. streets will be graded. Jackson street will be paved from Fifth to Seventh street, and Jefferson and Monroe streets will be paved from Fifth to Sixth street. The contract is already awarded for the paving of Lisbon street, and Franklin street will be graded and paved from Sixth street to the Horn switch.

Jethro street will be widened which will prevent all possibility of it being payed this season, as it will require at least one year for it to settle.

The committee appointed to ascertain the best and cheapest road paving will take their trip in the near future, and will then make a complete report to council, and the question will be submitted to the voters at the spring election together with the proposed new reservoir plans. Should both issues carry, council will have its hands full with improvements.

The Tanyard run sewer will also occupy a great deal of their attention, and should the state board of health grant the necessary permission for an outlet into the river, it will also be constructed | business order likely. He expected the this year.

Five Envelopes Out of a Bunch That He Wouldn't Redeem.

A reporter went into the New York postoffice the other day with a bundle of misdirected stamped envelopes in his tocket to see if Uncle Sam would not redeem them for cash. He found a window in a room on the second floor, where this is the special business attended to. Uncle Sam's representative looked over the lot of envelopes, handed back five, with the cash for the others,

"You will have to take a trip to Falls City, Neb.; Columbus, Ga.; Newark, N. J., and Brooklyn to get those four redeemed, and here is one we won't redeem at all. You see, it is this way: It does not matter where an envelope is addressed to; the point is where it comes from--what postoffice issued it. A postoffice can only redeem envelopes which it has issued itself. If an envelope shows on the face of it that some other office issued it, I can't give you cash for it.

"Now look at this one. Here in the corner is a note, 'After ten days return to Mr. Blank, Falls City, Neb.' Evidently the Falls City postoffice issued that, and you will have to go there to get it redeemed if you are fond of long distance economy of that sort. These envelopes here with no 'Return to' note may have been issued by some other office, but we have no means of knowing it and take them on faith. Here is one marked, 'Return to P. O. box 2,856, New York city.' We will take that, for we evidently issued iit. The principle is simple, even if its workings look complicated." The reporter reminded the clerk that he had refused one envelope altogether. The clerk took it up and looked at it. It had no "Return to" note in the corner, but the name and address were printed on it. "Well, you see, that comes under a different rule," he continued. "The idea is to redeem envelopes which have been misdirected by accident. This man has spoiled this envelope to help on his business, sending it to some correspondent inclosed with a letter asking for a other man to use this envelope only in writing to him and to keep him in mind of it he printed his address on it. He did not intend to furnish free stamps for his business acquaintances unless he got them back on letters to himself. Africans and Work.

All hard labor, all rough and unskilled labor, is, and owing to the heat of the climate must be, done by blacks, and in a new country like Matabeleland the blacks, though they can sometimes be induced to till the land, are most averse to working underground. They are only beginning to use money, and they do not want the things which money buys. The wants of a native living with his tribe and cultivating mealies or Kaffir corn are confined to a baross (skin cloak) or some pieces of cotton. will submit it to the meeting to be held The prospect of leaving his tribe to go and work in a mine in order that he may earn wages wherewith he can buy things that he has no use for does not at once appeal to him.

The white men, anxious to get to work on the gold reefs, are annoyed at what they call the stupidity and laziness of the native and usually clamor for legislation to compel the natives to come and work, adding, of course, that regular labor would be the best thing for the natives. - "Impressions of South Africa" by James Bryce.

Thomas Hood.

Hood's position in literature has been affected by the circumstance that he did two things excellently which in the general view are incompatible, in which case popular opinion generally fixes on the inferior gift as representing the writer's real capacity. He was a "funny man" as well as a lyric poet of real quality and earnest aims and was so admirable and original in the former and more abundant character that it probably caused many to regard the serious verse as merely an ambitious bid for a reputation it was not in the writer's power to achieve. Hood doubtless helped to strengthen this impression by practically ceasing to produce serious poetry for some 15 years of his short life. But that this was due to a necessity for finding a ready market for his wares is, I think, beyond a doubt .-Ainger's "Poems of Thomas Hood."

German Education.

The Germans are the most thoroughly educated people in the world. What they know they know well.

A fellow traveler had taken his degree of B. A. in the University of Pennsylvania and gone to that of Berlin, where he spent three years. Subsequently traveling in Switzerland, he met a young German whose range and accuracy of knowledge weee simply beyond that of any man of the same age he had ever met. In many walks and talks the German had absolutely pumped the American dry, while his own store of knowledge had only been touched. "Ach," said the German student one day, "I shall never get my degree, it is so difficult, it is so much, so hard, so long! I must have patience. I used to see you at the University of Berlin, and, forgive me the question, how did you get into the university?'

"Why, I was admitted on my B. A. from the University of Pennsylvania," replied the American. "Mein Gott!" gasped the German scholar. "I knew it must be some way ike that."

No better comment on the relative standards of knowledge and the thoroughness of the method by which it is pursued could be asked. -Philadelphia

COLUMBUS, Feb. 24.—The lobby, most important factor in shaping legislation, is seldom taken to account in the newspaper reports from the capitol. This suits the lobbyist, for he always works under cover, but the public has the "third house," which is a common name for the horde of wire pullers that terests there is no doubt. infest the legislature. Even a large proportion of members do not realize this power of the lobby. Many a legislator has been farmed out and voted by outside influence and he never knew it. These lobbyists comprise all sorts and conditions of men-and women, tooproperty interests valued at millions of dollars to the passage of some little local bill for a transfer of funds, which should never have come before the legislature at all. There are several hundred such lobbyists haunting the statehouse. Each has a scheme, either he wants a bill passed, or he wants a bill killed. He may be interested because certain legislation touches his business and of someone else. Of all these lobbyists the attorneys employed by the great corporations are the most important, and sometimes the most dangerous. These attorneys are among the best legal lights of the state. Many of them have formerly been members of the legislature, and they are wise in all the tricks of the trade. Some of these men are employed year after year and they know more about the inside workings of legislation than the legislators themselves. Quasi-Their united influence public corporations, such as street railways, steam railroads, gas and electric light campanies, the Standard Oil company and other trusts, are constantly menaced with unfriendly legislation. Innumerable bills to restrict their rights and priveleges and to increase their taxes are being constantly introduced. To prevent damage from this source the corporations keep a large lobby at the capitol during the entire session, and expend for this purpose great sums of money. I do not mean to say that this money is used corruptly, but talented lawyers can not be hired for the price of day labor, and these gentlemen are liberal spenders when it comes to entertaining a member of the legislature. There are half a hundred lobbyists and whose faces have become more familiar with each succeeding general assembly. But hardly one of these men will acknowledge his true occupation. They are known by the wise ones, how-THE talk of war concinues, and there ever, although many members have

Some of these lobbyists are leaders in state and national politics. They make destruction of the Maine. But it is not and unmake statesmen that they may without its uses. gether. The home of one is at the capital city and the other lives in Toledo In politics they are close chums, and, although both Republicans, these gentlemen organized and led the fight against Senator Hanna. In this contest they were barely beaten, but they succeeded in wresting the control of the house from the Republican majority and turned it over to those friendly to themselves; they also turned the senate over Some of the Best Attorneys of the State to the Democrats. This victory was Are In Columbus Caring For Interests more substantial in results than would have been the defeat of Hanna, which was purely a matter of personal spite.

Having engineered the organization of the legislature these two men keep their hands on the throttle, and with the assistance of a select coterie of lesser lights, continue to control the machine they have made. It does not need a profound mind to understand that if these men should be employed as lobbylittle conception of the potent power of ists they would have great influence. That they are so employed by varied in-

The Toledo gentleman spends most of his time in Columbus without any visible means of support. This is not because he can not maintain himself where and how he likes, for he is wealthy, but it is significant. It is also noticeable that his boon companions are the little from the most learned of corporation clique of Republican bolters and a few lawyers, to the rural township official of the Democratic leaders who have the with his pants in his boots. These men most to do with shaping the work of have many missions, from protecting the assembly. These men consult him continually, and make their rendezvous in the office of his Columbus friend. They are seen together at the theater and other public places, and the Toledo politician seems to have a most fatherly feeling for the young men who are making the laws. While these two men stand high in power among the lobbyists, they are only a minute portion in the matter of numbers. Besides the lobbyists regularly employed there is always a floating contingent. These floaters are of all sizes and shapes, so to speak, and travel in bunches of from one to one hundred. From now on the lobby will be composed pocketbook, or he may be in the employ of nearly a thousand people for every legislative day. Sometimes matters of great local moment to a city, such as a ripper bill, will cause excursions to be run to the capital with as many as a thousand in one party. Then, there are the women. Although comparatively a small portion of the lobby, they are exceedingly persistent, as Mr. Hazlett discovered when he introduced a bill to repeal woman's suffrage. The lobbyists follow the members day and night, they meet him when he arises in the morning, they call him out of his seat, they will not let him eat his dinner in peace, and if he is of a convivial nature they do their best to make life rosy for him during the greater portion of the night. Members will tell you that they do not care for the lobbyist and they will prate about their independence, but nevertheless the outside influence is great and if a member can not be reached in one way-there are others. Thus it will be seen that the legislature has some features besides long winded orations and dull committee meetings. What is seen on the surface often gives no sign of the tempest beneath, and many times the public is entirely misled as to the true reasons for laws that are placed on the statute books, or for certain political maneuvers.

BLACQUE WILSON.

Sheridan and the Joke.

Sheridan, himself a brilliant orator as well as a shrewd observer, was one day asked how it was he got on so well in the house of commons. "Well," he said, "I soon found out that the majorits were fools, but all loved a joke, and I determined to give them what they liked." The great advantage of a joke is that it puts the speaker at once on good terms with his audience Hence Cicero recommends it for an exordinm. A common way of winning the good will of an audience is flattery When the Jews brought down the orator Tertullus to accuse Paul, Tertullus began his speech with flattery of King Agrippa, "Since by thee we enjoy," and so on. Another way, a subtle form of flat tery, is to describe yourself as a native of the same place or county as those you are addressing. The forensic formula, the fustian apostrophe to the 12 "intelligent and patriotic and high minded men" whom the rhetorical Buzfuz sees before him, is played out, but it has its modern equivalents. - Westminster Re-

Mixed.

A Mississippi girl described her first visit to a city in the following rhapsody "Oh, I had such a perfectly beautifu! time! Everything was so converted, you know. We stopped to a house where we rode to our rooms in a refrigerator, and our rooms were illustrated with election lights. There was no stove in the room, but one of those legislators in the floor, and the heat poured right up through. I did not have any appetite and could not get a thing I could realize. Honestly, when I got home I was almost an individual."-Atlanta Con-

If President McKinley Calls For Troops.

TEN THOUSAND COULD BE MOVED

In a Very Short Time if It Became Necessary-Adjutant General Axline Makes a Statement of What Ohio Could Do In Case of War.

Governor Bushnell and Adjutant General Axline are receiving scores of letters daily from all sections of the state, offering the services of the writers in case of war between this country and Some offer their personal services only, while others express their readiness to raise troops. While these offers are considered premature, they indicate the feeling prevalent throughout the state. The governor has made no offer of Ohio troops to the president, as the National Guard is subject to call, Washington. In case of war with Spain | that. the state militia would be mobilized at Cincinnati within 12 hours, ready for transportation to Norfolk, Savannah or Key West, which could be done in from Hello, old fellow, how's that?" 24 to 36 hours more.

should come in the morning, within 12 hours we could have 6,000 fully equipped men at Cincinnati. Within 24 hours, I am sure, we could fill up the companies to the 100 limit, and mobilize 10,000. This could be done with exguardsmen, who would be quick to volunteer. These recruits, though, would have to be equipped. This equipment could be sent by the government to meet them at Norfolk or Key West. Plans for the expansion of the guard in an emergency are on file at headquarters. For instance, should a call come which made apportioned among the different counties in an hour."

The question as to whether the guard is expected to do duty beyond the confines of the state is being discussed among its members, but is easily disposed of. The President can call them at any time, and they would be compelled to respond, but not as members of the Ohio guard. They would be a part and parcel of the army; with them it would not be a matter of choice.

IS HE RIGHT?

Does He Know That He States Undeniable Truths?

He walked into the NEWS REVIEW office this morning, seated himself in a comfortable chair and addressed the manager as follows:

"Do you know that the saloon element is determined to rule in this city, by fair means or foul? If you don't know it, then you'd better investigate and find out for yourself. I know that they have a candidate for mayor and that they are raising funds for the purpose of controlling a sufficient number of votes to place their candidate in nomination on the Republican ticket. I know that they are counting on so dividing the Republican vote as to manipulate it in favor of their man, place him in nomination, and then, through the medium of the lash of the party whip, force Republicans to vote for him, or be termed traitors to their party."

Is our informant right? Does he know what he is talking about? If he does, then has the time come for hot, strong, warm and vehement and concentrated ACTION against such unholy measures.

SUBURBANITE MEMORY.

Devices Employed by Wives to Remind Husbands of Errands.

"Talking of memory systems," said the suburbanite on the accommodation train, "I can't for the life of me see low a man who is unable to remember one thing is helped by having to remember two. If I tie a sing around my finger, I must recall the purpose of vearing it, which I never can do. If I raust always think of rain when I want o carry an unibrella. I have double ork. Now, my wife wanted me to remember something today, and she gave me a word to say over to myself, and I've forgotten the word.'

SENT TO SWEAR AGAINST PA.

Because His Ma Didn't Dare to Leave Her Living Seat.

He was a mere stripling of a lad. He might have been 7 years of age or he might have been 9. Nobody could tell Ohio's quota 30,000, this quota could be by looking at his face. The only mark of certainty about the youthful countenance was the sure sign that some of his ancestors had come from old Ireland. The little fellow walked hastily into the office of the warrant clerk of Recorder Finnegan's court. He did not notice the four persons standing in line waiting to get affidavits made but against some bothersome relatives, but the youth pushed through the crowd and disengaged the attention of the clerk with this odd demand:

"I want to make an affidavit against my pa," said he and pushed his little red head around the side of the desk.

"You want what?" queried the clerk. "I want to swear against pa," said the boy again. "What has your pa done?" "He has just been in a prizefight with ma." "Well, why don't your ma swear out the warrant against pa? My boy, you are too young; you won't fill the bill." "My ma can't come, and she wanted me to fix it up for her." "Why could she not come?" asked the clerk, getting interested in the youngster's story. He could not imagine why the wife would not be only too willing to swear out the warrant. "My pa and ma they got in the fight in the kitchen. That is how it happened. My pa made a drive for her, but didn't land, and then my ma she grabbed up the rolling pin and floored the old man. She is now setting on him, holding him down, and that is why she couldn't come to swear against him. She sent me."-New Orieans Times-Democrat.

Colonel Kit Chinn.

A St. Louis footpad attempted to hold up Colonel Kit Chinn of Kentucky one night recently, and the aforesaid footpad hasn't done anything since. If there is a man on earth whom footpads should shun as a temperate man shuns a blind tiger, that man is Kit Chinn. He is a born fighter, and his favorite weapons are the ones which the Creator endowed him with at his birth. He is one of the few men in Kentucky who hold the use of pistol or knife in contempt and is totally devoid of fear. He has fought a wildcat in the open with nothing but his bare knuckles and come out winner, and it is said that upon one occasion he offered to fight a rattlesnake and give him the first bite. - Glasgow (Ky.)

The monotonous line of testimony

crept along as usual. Michael Brennan testified that he ran for the brush when some strikers tried to capture him. Two shots were fired, but he managed to escape.

August Winnock, who worked at Cranberry, testified that on Sept. 3, seven days before 'the fatal shooting, a crowd of strikers told the workmen there they must quit or they would be hurt. He and others went home. On the day before the shooting they tried again to work, but were stopped on the road and told they would be killed if they went to the workings. They went home.

Ludwig Laube of Cranberry stated that he refused to go home when ordered to do so by the strikers, and in consequence he was struck in the back with a stone thrown by a striker and badly hurt. Witness said he was so afraid of the strikers that he carried a revolver for the first time in his life.

Nine other witnesses gave evidence of a corroborative nature concerning the alleged belligerency of the strikers before the shooting occurred.

When the Protected Home Circle Refused to Pay.

QUESTION OF DISABILITY

which Interests the Members of the Order In This State Was Discussed In the suit of Mrs. Lawrence-Grand Jury Returned 17 Indictments This Morning.

LISBON, Feb. 24.-[Special.]-Jennie L. Lawrence became a member of the Protected Home circle at Lisbon in 1891. By a provision in her certificate, in case she became totally physically disqualified to earn a livlihood, she was to receive $500. By her application she agreed to comply with the rules of the order. When she joined, the laws said that a member should be considered totally physically disabled whenever he loses both legs at or above the ankle, both arms above the wrist, one leg and one arm, both eyes or who suffers total paralysis of the lower limbs. Mrs. Lawrence claims she knew nothing of this provision when she joined the order. Afterward it was changed by providing that a member was physically disabled only when these things happened. One year ago last January she was stricken by paralysis and her left arm and leg are useless. She asked for the $500, and upon refusal brought suit. The case was tried yesterday and went to the jury this morning. A verdict for the defendant was returned this afternoon, and the petit jury excused until next Wednesday.

Judge Smith charged that she is bound by all the laws in force when she became a member, and that any material change affecting her certificate must have her consent either at its adoption or after-

SEVENTEEN INDICTMENTS

Changing the Names

The latest move of city officials is to drop the name of the Calcutta road and have West Market street extend to the corporate limits. It is argued that it should at least be known as Calcutta

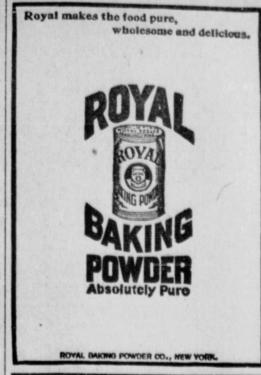

Several councilmen are of the opinion that the name of Summit lane should be changed to Midway, the name adopted by the newspapers, instead of calling it Diamond street.

FOMENTATIONS.

Row to Prepare Them When No Hot Water Is at Hand.

Fomentations of hot or cold water are often very useful, and every one should know how to give them. A flannel cloth may be folded, wrung out of hot or cold water as is desired and applied directly to the skin. It is much better after wringing out the flannel as dry as desired to fold it in a dry flannel cloth of one or two thicknesses before applying it to the patient. A little time is required for the heat of the fomentation to penetrate the dry flannel, and thus the skin is allowed an opportunity to acquire tolerance for the heat, and a battery; Theodore Lightner, Leetonia, higher degree of temperature can be burglary and larceny; Oscar Gillespie, borne if the moist cloth is brought directly into contact with the surface. The outer fold of dry flannel will also serve to keep the cloth warm by preventing evaporation.

A hot fomentation is sometimes needed when no hot water is at hand. It is bership fee were fixed at $1, and 25 James Cameron, who was command- not necessary to wait for water to be heated in the usual way. Soak the flannel in cold water, wring as dry as desired, fold in a newspaper and lay upon the stove or wrap it about the stovepipe. In a few minutes it will be as warm as the patient can bear. The paper keeps the pipe from becoming moistened by the wet flannel and at the same time prevents the flannel from being soiled by contact with the pipe.

Fomentations thoroughly applied will relieve most of the local pains for which liniments, lotions and poultices are generally applied and are greatly to be preferred to these remedies since they are cleaner and aid nature more effectually in restoring the injured parts to a sound condition.

The fomentation may be changed frequently, and after it has been removed massage may be given either by the person himself or another, so as to strengthen the part and promote a better circulation of blood in it.-Ex-

TELEGRAPHIC RECORD.

An Order Sent, Filled and Reported In Eighteen Seconds.

Telegraphers have a new record to break. A New York speculator wired an order to his Chicago broker. It was filled in the open market and a report of the transaction made to the man in town yesterday. New York all in 18 seconds. This new record was made recently in a wheat deal originating in the New York Produce Exchange and executed in the Chicago board of trade.

On this occasion the New York speculator found himself in a position where it was necessary to buy in a large quantity of May at the lowest obtainable price and to take full advantage of a shifting market. He wanted to get his grain at the bottom for the day and also to make sure his order was filled immediately when he gave the word. In just 18 seconds from the time he handed the telegram to the operator in the New York office an answer notifying him that the grain had been bought was in his hands .- St. Louis Republic.

Mr. Guttridge was seen by a reporter, but refused to say when work would begin on the steel plant.

The Faith Curists.

W. H. Irwin began his meetings at the Fourteenth street mission last night, the place being well filled. He explained that he was not there to abuse anyone, and cited instances of where people had prayed and fires, then raging near their dwellings, had been blown in another direction. He paid some attention to divine healing and the second coming of Christ, outlining what he would speak of in future meetings. The baptism of fire was explained. Another meeting was held this afternoon.

The Athletic Association.

The Athletic association met in the Foraker club rooms last evening, and furthered plans for the organization. As soon as enough members can be secured a charter will be applied for. The memcents a month was decided on as the dues. A membership soliciting committee consisting of five members was appointed, and at a late hour today had met with much success. An up-to-date gymnasium, with bath rooms attached, was discussed. Another meeting will be held next Monday evening.

Evarts and Mark Twain.

At a New England society dinner some years ago Mark Twain had just finished a piquant address when Mr. Evarts arose, shoved both of his hands down into his trousers pockets, as was his habit, and laughingly remarked, 'Doesn't it strike this company as a little unusual that a professional humorist should be funny?" Mark Twain waited until the laughter excited by this sally had subsided, and then drawled out, "Doesn't it strike this company as a little unusual that a lawyer should have his hands in his own pockets?"-Exchange.

The City Is Preparing For a Busy Season.

Council Is Planning to Make a Great Many Almost All Be Re-Elected the Plans Will and said: Be Carried Out,

Council is preparing to make many improvements in the spring, and as almost all the members will probably be re-elected there is but little doubt the improvements will be made.

Huston road, or Bradshaw avenue, will be paved, while Avondale street will be graded to the Calcutta road, and the Minerva and Oak sidewalks laid. streets will be graded. Jackson street will be paved from Fifth to Seventh street, and Jefferson and Monroe streets will be paved from Fifth to Sixth street. The contract is already awarded for the paving of Lisbon street, and Franklin street will be graded and paved from Sixth street to the Horn switch.

Jethro street will be widened which will prevent all possibility of it being payed this season, as it will require at least one year for it to settle.

The committee appointed to ascertain the best and cheapest road paving will take their trip in the near future, and will then make a complete report to council, and the question will be submitted to the voters at the spring election together with the proposed new reservoir plans. Should both issues carry, council will have its hands full with improvements.

The Tanyard run sewer will also occupy a great deal of their attention, and should the state board of health grant this year.

Five Envelopes Out of a Bunch That He Wouldn't Redeem.

A reporter went into the New York postoffice the other day with a bundle of misdirected stamped envelopes in his tocket to see if Uncle Sam would not redeem them for cash. He found a STREETS LISTED FOR PAVING window in a room on the second floor, where this is the special business attended to. Uncle Sam's representative looked over the lot of envelopes, handed Improvements, and as the Members Will back five, with the cash for the others,

"You will have to take a trip to Falls City, Neb.; Columbus, Ga.; Newark, N. J., and Brooklyn to get those four redeemed, and here is one we won't redeem at all. You see, it is this way: It does not matter where an envelope is addressed to; the point is where it comes from-what postoffice issued it. A postoffice can only redeem envelopes which it has issued itself. If an envelope shows on the face of it that some other office issued it, I can't give you

"Now look at this one. Here in the corner is a note, 'After ten days return to Mr. Blank, Falls City, Neb.' Evidently the Falls City postoffice issued that, and you will have to go there to get it redeemed if you are fond of long distance economy of that sort. These envelopes here with no 'Return to' note may have been issued by some other office, but we have no means of knowing it and take them on faith. Here is one marked, 'Return to P. O. box 2,856, New York city.' We will take that, for we evidently issued iit. The principle is simple, even if its workings look complicated."

The reporter reminded the clerk that he had refused one envelope altogether. The clerk took it up and looked at it. It had no "Return to" note in the corner, but the name and address were printed on it. "Well, you see, that comes under a different rule," he continued. "The idea is to redeem envelopes which have been misdirected by accident. This man has spoiled this envelope to help on his business, sending it to some correspondthe necessary permission for an outlet ent inclosed with a letter asking for a into the river, it will also be constructed business order likely. He expected the other man to use this envelope only in writing to him and to keep him in mind of it he printed his address on it. He did not intend to furnish free stamps for his business acquaintances unless he got them back on letters to himself. His correspondent-you in this caseeither did not send him an order or sent get back 2 cents. The business man spent that 2 cents simply to boom his business. Uncle Sam is not booming any one's business, even to the extent of 2 cents, except where all share alike get that envelope redeemed anywhere."

Africans and Work.

All hard labor, all rough and unskilled labor, is, and owing to the heat of the climate must be, done by blacks, and in a new country like Matabeleland the blacks, though they can sometimes be induced to till the land, are most averse to working underground. They are only beginning to use money, and they do not want the things which money buys. The wants of a native living with his tribe and cultivating mealies or Kaffir corn are confined to a baross (skin cloak) or some pieces of cotton. The prospect of leaving his tribe to go and work in a mine in order that he may earn wages wherewith he can buy things that he has no use for does not at once appeal to him.

The white men, anxious to get to work on the gold reefs, are annoyed at what they call the stupidity and laziness of the native and usually clamor for legislation to compel the natives to come and work, adding, of course, that regular labor would be the best thing for the natives. - "Impressions of South Africa'' by James Bryce.

Thomas Hood.

Hood's position in literature has been affected by the circumstance that he did two things excellently which in the general view are incompatible, in which case popular opinion generally fixes on the inferior gift as representing the writer's real capacity. He was a "funny man" as well as a lyric poet of real quality and earnest aims and was so admirable and original in the former and more abundant character that it probably caused many to regard the serious verse as merely an ambitious bid for a reputation it was not in the writer's power to achieve. Hood doubtless helped to strengthen this impression by practically ceasing to produce serious poetry for some 15 years of his short life. But that this was due to a necessity for finding a ready market for his wares is, I think, beyond a doubt .-Ainger's "Poems of Thomas Hood."

To Be Washed With Care.

"Yes," said the man whose narraives are almost invariably interesting, "I had some curious experiences in that mining country. One day I met two children with the dirtiest faces I ever beheld.

"Poor things!"

"That's what I thought. I said to them, 'Children, why don't you wash your faces?' and one of them answered: We dasen't. We've been playin on pap's best claim, and he's liable to lose money if anybody touches us but him." -Washington Star.

German Education.

The Germans are the most thoroughly educated people in the world. What they know they know well.

A fellow traveler bad taken his degree of B. A. in the University of Pennsylvania and gone to that of Berlin, where he spent three years. Subsequently traveling in Switzerland, he met a young German whose range and accuracy of knowledge weee simply beyond that of any man of the same age he had ever met. In many walks and talks the German had absolutely pumped the American dry, while his own store of knowledge had only been touched. "Ach," said the German student one day, "I shall never get my degree, it is so difficult, it is so much, so hard, so long! I must have patience. I used to see you at the University of Berlin, and, forgive me the question, how did you get into the university?"

"Why, I was admitted on my B. A. from the University of Pennsylvania," replied the American.

'Mein Gott!" gasped the German scholar. "I knew it must be some way like that." No better comment on the relative standards of knowledge and the thoroughness of the method by which it is pursued could be asked. - Philadelphia

TEN THOUSAND COULD BE MOVED

In a Very Short Time if It Became Necessary-Adjutant General Axline Makes a Statement of What Ohio Could Do In Case of War.

Governor Bushnell and Adjutant General Axline are receiving scores of letters daily from all sections of the state, offering the services of the writers in case of war between this country and Spain. Some offer their personal services only, while others express their readiness to raise troops. While these offers are considered premature, they indicate the feeling prevalent throughout the state. The governor has made no offer of Ohio troops to the president, as the National Guard is subject to call, and would be ready to march a few hours after the reception of a call from Washington. In case of war with Spain | that. the state militia would be mobilized at Cincinnati within 12 hours, ready for transportation to Norfolk, Savannah or Key West, which could be done in from 24 to 36 hours more.

General Axline says: "If the call should come in the morning, within 12 hours we could have 6,000 fully equipped men at Cincinnati. Within 24 hours, I am sure, we could fill up the companies to the 100 limit, and mobilize 10,000. This could be done with exguardsmen. who would be quick to volunteer. These recruits, though, would have to be equipped. This equipment could be sent by the government to meet them at Norfolk or Key West. Plans for the expansion of the guard in an emergency are on file at headquarters. For instance, should a call come which made Ohio's quota 30,000, this quota could be apportioned among the different counties in an hour."

The question as to whether the guard is expected to do duty beyond the confines of the state is being discussed among its members, but is easily disposed of. The President can call them at any time, and they would be compelled to respond, but not as members of the Ohio guard. They would be a part and parcel of the army; with them it would not be a matter of choice.

IS HE RIGHT?

Does He Know That He States Undeniable Truths?

He walked into the NEWS REVIEW office this morning, seated himself in a comfortable chair and addressed the manager as follows:

"Do you know that the saloon element is determined to rule in this city, by fair means or foul? If you don't know it, then you'd better investigate and find out for yourself. I know that they have a candidate for mayor and that they are raising funds for the purpose of controlling a sufficient number of votes to place their candidate in nomination on the Republican ticket. I know that they are counting on so dividing the Republican vote as to manipulate it in favor of their man, place him in nomination, and then, through the medium of the lash of the party whip, force Republicans to vote for him, or be termed traitors to their party."

Is our informant right? Does he know what he is talking about? If he does, then has the time come for hot, strong, warm and vehement and concentrated ACTION against such unholy measures.

SUBURBANITE MEMORY.

Devices Employed by Wives to Remind Husbands of Errands.

"Talking of memory systems," said If President McKinley Calls the suburbanite on the accommodation train, "I can't for the life of me see low a man who is unable to remember one thing is helped by having to remember two. If I tie a sing around my finger, I must recall the purpose of vearing it, which I never can do. If I nust always think of rain when I want carry an umbrella, I have double ork. Now, my wife wanted me to remember something today, and she gave me a word to say over to myself, and I've forgotten the word."

"Pooh! It's easy enough to remember things if you give your mind to it," said another suburbanite. "My wife told me to be sure to order somenow what the mischief was it? Soap! Bluing? Well, that's funny. I thought I would be sure to remember.

He plunged his hands into his overcoat pockets to cover his chague and pulled out of one a rough bit of scantling with a memorandum in lead pencil attached.

"Well, I vow! My wife must have stuck that thing in there. Oh, yes, I see. It was a load of kindling she wanted me to order. But one could hardly be expected to remember a thing like

"I wish I could find a reminder of what I am to get as easy as you did, but my wife doesn't believe in giving a sample to help out a poor memory. Hello, old fellow, how's that?"

He had pulled a little rubber shoe out of his pocket and was regarding it with loving eyes:

"Sammy's overshoe, by all that's queer! And here's something inside. Length, five inches.' Bless his little heart. I'd have forgot all about them if it hadn't been for this memory lesson. There's something in the system after all."-Chicago Times-Herald.

SENT TO SWEAR AGAINST PA.

Because His Ma Didn't Dare to Leave Her Living Seat.

He was a mere stripling of a lad. He might have been 7 years of age or he might have been 9. Nobody could tell by looking at his face. The only mark of certainty about the. youthful countenance was the sure sign that some of his ancestors had come from old Ireland. The little fellow walked hastily into the office of the warrant clerk of Recorder Finnegan's court. He did not notice the four persons standing in line waiting to get affidavits made but against some bothersome relatives, but the youth pushed through the crowd and d:sengaged the attention of the clerk with this odd demand:

"I want to make an affidavit against my pa," said he and pushed his little red head around the side of the desk.

"You want what?" queried the clerk. "I want to swear against pa," said versely to the plaintiff.

the boy again. "What has your pa done?"

"He has just been in a prizefight Fla. with ma."

"Well, why don't your ma swear out the warrant against pa? My boy, you are too young; you won't fill the bill."

"My ma can't come, and she wanted me to fix it up for her."

"Why could she not come?" asked the clerk, getting interested in the youngster's story. He could not imagine why the wife would not be only too willing to swear out the warrant.

"My pa and ma they got in the fight in the kitchen. That is how it happened. My pa made a drive for her, but didn't land, and then my ma she grabbed up the rolling pin and floored the old man. She is now setting on him, holding bim down, and that is why she couldn't come to swear against him. She sent me."-New Orieans Times-Democrat.

Colonel Kit Chinn.

A St. Louis footpad attempted to hold up Colonel Kit Chinn of Kentucky one night recently, and the aforesaid footpad hasn't done anything since. If there is a man on earth whom footpads should shun as a temperate man shuns a blind tiger, that man is Kit Chinn. He is a born fighter, and his favorite weapons are the ones which the Creator endowed him with at his birth. He is one of the few men in Kentucky who hold the use of pistol or knife in contempt and is totally devoid of fear. He has fought a wildcat in the open with nothing but his bare knuckles and come out winner, and it is said that upon one occasion he offered to fight a rattlesnake and give him the first bite. - Glasgow (Ky.)

THE MARTIN JURORS HAPPY.

Prospects of Getting to Bathe the Cause. Testimony Given.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 24.-There was joy among the Martin jurors when Judge Woodward told them they could at any time take baths at a bathhouse where everybody else would be excluded. They have been occupying their cramped coarthouse quarters now for three weeks. The monotonous line of testimony

crept along as usual. Michael Brennan testified that he ran for the brush when some strikers tried to capture him. Two shots were fired,

but he managed to escape. August Winnock, who worked at Cranberry, testified that on Sept. 3, seven days before the fatal shooting, a crowd of strikers told the workmen there they must quit or they would be hurt. He and others went home. On the day before the shooting they tried again to work, but were stopped on the road and told they would be killed if they went to the workings. They went home. Ludwig Laube of Cranberry stated that he refused to go home when ordered to do so by the strikers, and in consequence he was struck in the back with a stone thrown by a striker and badly hurt. Witness said he was so afraid of the strikers that he carried a revolver for the first time in his life.

Nine other witnesses gave evidence of a corroborative nature concerning the alleged belligerency of the strikers before the shooting occurred.

MOB'S COWARDLY ACT.

Killed a Postmaster Because He Was a Negro.

SHOT HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

One Boy Murdered and His Body and That of His Father Cremated In the Burning Home, Fired by South Carolina Whites.

LAKE CITY, S. C., Feb. 23 .- Postmaster Baker, a negro, and his child were shot to death and their bodies cremated here. It is said that a mob numbering several hundred surrounded Baker's house, where the postoffice is kept, set fire to the building and opened fire with guns upon it. Baker was killed and his wife, two daughters and one son were seriously wounded.

There had been protests against Baker's appointment. Three months ago he was fired upon from ambush.

Tuesday of last week his house was riddled with bullets.

It was a short time before that Senators Stillman and McLauren and Congressman Horton had asked the postmaster general to remove Baker because of his color, and the request had been

Early Tuesday morning the torch was applied to the postoffice and Baker's house. Back, just within the line of light, were over 100 white men armed with pistols and shotguns. By the time the fire aroused the sleeping family, consisting of the postmaster, his wife, four daughters, a son and an infant at the breast, the crowd began firing into the building. A hundred bullet holes wormed through the thin boards, and many found lodgment in the people within.

Baker was the first to reach the door, and he fell dead just within the threshhold, being shot in several places. The moth r had the baby in her arms, and had reached the door over her husband's loly, when a bullet crashed through its skuil and fell to the floor. She was shot in several places. Two of the girls had their arms broken close to the shoulder and will probably lose them. Another of the girls is believed to be fatally wounded.

The boy is shot. Two of the seven occupants of the house escaped with slight injuries. The bodies of Baker and the infant were cremated in the building. All mail matter was destroyed.

The marriage was followed by a small dinner at the Nicollet House, and from to 4 o'clock a reception was held at the hotel to which a large number of guests were invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly left later for an eastern trip of six weeks' duration. The bride, who is 22 years of age, has been for about two years Mr. Donnelly's stenographer.

WHY CUBANS ARE SORRY.

Maine Disaster Has Neutralized Unfriend

liness Between the Two Countries. CLEVELAND, Feb. 23.—Senor A.G. De

Arango, a prominent Cuban and a mem ber of the junta, in speaking of the Maine explosion said: "It is needless for me to say that the may interest the public to know that we also regret the occurrence for a reason quite separate from sympathy

"The event will doubtless result in bringing Spain and the United States into more amiable relations. Already the conciliatory courtesy of the Havana authorities and the Madrid administra-tion has neutralized the unfriendly feeling which so long prevailed in this country. The Spanish ministry saw its opportunity to strike the soft spot in the American heart, and was not tardy in embracing it."

The Vizcaya Risks Our Coal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 .- Two Lehigh Valley coal barges were towed to the Vizcaya and their cargos transferred to the man-of-war. The vessel needed coal, and Captain Eulate decided to take on board a supply here. The waterboat Croton also visited the Vizcaya and filled her tanks with fresh water. The coal was closely watched.

DRUMMER'S QUEER STORY.

Made Them Drink to His Early Grave and Survived Them All.

A hale and hearty traveling man with pink skin and white hair-a condition of complexion which, by the way, not every traveling man lives to reach-was renewing his youth with a party of young and festive drummers. Drinks were going round freely, and when one of the "boys" turned down his glass there was considerable remonstrance on the part of his companions at his refusal to have "just one more."

The white haired man quietly cut the discussion short by saying, "That reminds me."

The old drummer flicked the ashes from his cigar and settled back in his chair. "It was a long time ago," said he, "and it was in the old American House in this city. There were five young men seated in a room, just as we are here tonight, only they were all feeling 'pretty good,' and there wasn't any old man around to bore them with a story. But along about midnight one of the party turned down his glass just as my young friend here has done. He said he had had enough, and goodness knows he had. His determination was greeted most hilariously as a good joke. He steadily declined, however, though the wine was brought and set before him, but the taunts and innuendoes of his comrades finally exasperated him so that he exclaimed rather petulantly, but half in fun, 'Well, boys, I'll join you once more if you will drink to an early grave for me. ' The toast was proposed uproariously and drank standing. But somebow after that the fun was not so furious. Things quieted down. The men seemed to balf realize that to drink to a man's death wasn't such a good joke after all, and one by one they made excuses and went off to bed.'

Here the old man paused. "Did the man die?" queried he who bad refused to "have another" with

"No," was the reply. "He is the only one of the five now alive to tell the tale. -Buffalo News.

THE SANCY DIAMOND.

This Magnificent Jewel Will Be Owned by Pauline Astor.

In the ordinary course of events Miss Pauline Astor will some day become possessor of the most famous and magnificent diamond owned outside of a crown treasure. The gem in question is the world famous Sancy diamond, owned by her father, and were it to appear among the jewels worn at any court function or royal drawing room it would entirely throw into the shade every other gem there except the Kohinoor, which the queen always wears on state occasions as a brooch.

The Sancy is a stone which is posed of a remarkable history. Weigh ing about 54 carats, it at one time formed part of the crown jewels of Duke Charles the Bold of Burgundy, and on his death in battle in Switzernuptials were celebrated in the church land was found set either in his belmet of the bride, the Norwegian Methodist, or sword hilt. The Swiss sold it to the French king of the day, and from that audience of about 600, which evinced a time forth it became one of the crown jewels of France.

It disappeared at the time of the revolution, reappeared at the restoration and at the time of the second revolution in 1830 passed by purchase into the possession of Anatole Demidoff, the Muscovite millionaire. It was worn for a time by Demidoff's wife, Princess Mathilde Bonaparte, but he took it from her before their separation and then bequeathed it to his nephew, Paul Demidoff. The latter sold it in the sixties for the sum of $200,000, a ridiculously small price, to the late Sir Jamsetjee Jejeehobboy, the Parsee millionaire and philanthropist of Bombay. After his demise his heirs put it once more in the market, and it was purchased by William Waldorf Astor by private contract, no mention being made of the price paid. - Philadelphia Times

Examination Stories.

Isis of Oxford tells two good examination stories. The first is a candidate who in the divinity viva voce was asked to translate a portion of the gospels. As he did not stop at the end of that "It is needless for me to say that the Cubans deplore that disaster. But it "Thank you, Mr. ——, that will do. We are quite satisfied with your paper." "Oh, please," was the answer, do let me go on. I should so like to find out how this story ends." Modern history furnishes the other. One candidate's paper in the Oxford local examination contained the following luminous and surprising passage, "General Wolfe boldly attacked the Arabian knights without waiting for the other three corpses to come up. "

Harbor Mistress Fuller.

Miss Fuller, a newspaper woman, has lately been appointed harbor mistress of Tacoma, Wash. It is said that thus far she has done remarkably good work, keeping all records pertaining to the extensive shipping business of the city in perfect shape. Last month she made out the harbor master's report for the year, the first report of the kind ever made out by an American woman.

More Witnesses Give Such Testimony In the Martin Trial.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 23 .- The Martin trial proceeded as usual yesterday, although in recognition of the day Washington's farewell address was read aloud by direction of Judge Woodward at the opening of court. The hearing of evidence for the defense was then resumed. Mrs. James Edmondson, who lives at Harwood, said that on the day of the shooting she heard a neighbor shout: "Skin out, the strikers are coming." Continuing, witness said: "I saw the men. They all had clubs. My man and my boarders hid behind the shanty and I went to protect my sick boy in the house. But they found my husband and tried to get him away. I grabbed him and, after a lot of words, they let him go. They said to me, 'wait until we come back, we'll fix you.'

James Edmondson corroborated her

Peter Wolfe said: "On the Friday the strikers gathered to march to Lattimer I went down to the company store and we locked ourselves in. Afterward, when we thought the strikers had gone, we went out. One man chased me with a big club for a long distance, and I finally escaped by jumping through the window of my house."

James McGraw of Harwood said he was pursued by the strikers, and as he could not run because of his advanced age he hid in the bush, and as he drop-ped two shots were fired at him. He remained in hiding until the men had
